LANGUAGE OF THE WORLD

To Be English?

The problem of a universal language was discussed at a recent session of the annual conference of the Rotary International Association of Great Britain and Ireland, which opened at Margate on Saturday.

Mr. Walter Henderson, of Australia, declared that it was the curse of the Tower of Babel that was preventing international friendship. We wanted a living common language, one with a literature, one in which we could make love and one in which we could swear, a language full of emotion. The best language in the world that did not speak, he added, was the friendly wag of a dog's tail.

Mr. Paul Thorwall, of Finland, said that on the Continent they had come to the conclusion that it was no use learning an auxiliary or scientific language, unless the great nations of the world taught that language in their schools.

"But no other nation of the world would like another language to be accepted as a world language," he said. "They agree, however, that English is not difficult to learn, and I believe the nations of the earth are drifting towards English."

said internationally they sought peace, nationally they were searching for security, and individually they were striving after happiness.

"Most of our endeavours towards peace are mere talkie ones, most of our peace faith is in papers signed by various nations," said Mr. Gray. "Once upon a time nations signed papers with the right hand. To-day nations are ambidextrous. ## COLOUR COME BACK

The wave of white which only a year or two ago rose and engulfed every smart house has now retreated to the walls, ceiling and accessories, making a framework for the strong colours we once more love to use. Vogue, in its current issue, maintains that deep colour is smart again in furnishings, and to illustrate the point shows some photographs of lovely interiors, where colour plays a big part. My bedroom is a white setting for my blue accents—navy satin bed cover, and exquisite Spanish chairs of whitewood, tufted in navy. A drawing room has sofa and ottoman covered in current red velvet, set off by white cushions and curtains. A white setting, and brilliant colour notes make one of the best inspirations of modern decoration.

THE VELVET HAND In The Modern Glove

It will be a hand-to-hand fight as to who will wear the gayest gloves this season. Puritans considered collars as strips of plain linen, deploring lace, whether pointed or plain, as a Provost of Oriel once said at dinner, after announcing badgers as his subject, that he "deplored their disrepute."

Much later than Cavalier collars there came a time (quite healthy people now alive still remember it), when gloves were hand coverings, and hand-coverings only. They were not epigrams, or flirtations, or part of the trimmings of the dress, or arabesques traced upon the air. They were as severely what they were as a Lifeguardsman's uniform is what it is.

They went by button lengths (ranging from two or three for day-time wear, and from twelve to twenty for evening, as sleeves shortened), and they were of kid—suede was long viewed askance—white for evening; black, brown, or mushroom permitted for wear with light summer frocks; and tan for hard morning work, like going shopping after the rain had stopped.

GLACE-KID AGE

Nothing else, ladies. That age, it is not of ice, was the age of glace-kid, and it allowed no fantasy at all. From that age dated the dictum that a gentlewoman is known by her gloves and her shoes. Her shoes—but that is too attractive a by-path. Anyhow, they were as comfortable to drill as her gloves. Moreover, they also were of sizes four to six and a half. Nobody of the class to be known by her hand and foot wear ever took a size seven then—nor a two-foot stride or a back-hander either.

Their feet and hands were smaller in proportion to ours than present sizes seem to suggest. If we only take sizes where they took sizes, let us remember—much preferably, let us forget—the 'knighly' action of the boot and glove trades, which first fell into syncope when the result of open-air occupations upon feminine measurements became apparent, and on coming to, decided, in the most chivalrous manner, that all sizes were to slide backwards. The hitherto seven was henceforth a six.

From the tyranny of glace-kid we are now delivered into a freedom, strongly resembling licence. There used to be gauntlets, but they were mannish. Now, Heaven look down upon us, they are positively lady-like—made of lace, or organdi, or waxed muslin, by my halldom! A voice from the back of the hall says: "Then why the gauntlets?" Let this purblind survival of the days of armoured protection be with the answer: Its shape accords with the present outline of women's shoulder and sleeves. We shall hear no more of him, poor old boy.

LINE REQUIRED

For there is no answer to that. If the line is required, that line we will have. And we are already lucky if it has even so much as the answering to a redan, a salient, a redoubt, or a bastion, pushed forward by the shoulder. Quite often there is no such logical basis for the wild-running glove.

Save for evening wear, where tradition decrees the sheath of white kid, it can be made of everything or anything, from straw to silk, from velvet to chiffon. It can be embroidered, inset with net, gauntleted, sleeved, braced, mitted. It can be of any colour from raven-black to rose-mushroom. It can have round or plain buttons, or fancy buttons, jewelled.

It can be of kid, or suede, or the fabrics which imitate them. It can cost sixpence per glove or sixteen shillings a pair, or something more unattainable still.

Very often, for Allah is great, it is washable. The undying advantage of washing over cleaning is that soap has a nice smell that doesn't last, and benzine has a hateful one that does. Besides, for some reason, it is more generally respected to have washable things and wash them to have cleanable things and not wear new ones instead. A guest in a brand-new costume, on her way to Windsor Castle garden-party, turned back and went to bed for a week sooner than face the august occasion in a perfect organdi on which careless gargle had allowed a spray of petrol to fall. However clean, we do not wish to seem clean.

Too Bad

"My husband has taken all the cash out of baby's money-box."

"My dear!"
"Yes, and just when there was nearly enough for the new hat I wanted."

MIDSUMMER FASHION FANCIES

Evening Gowns Of Chintz And Ticking

Paris.
Midsummer fancies! Beach costumes, tennis togs, garden party frocks, evening gowns for the country house party, for dinner on a roof garden, for the country club, each more desirable than the other. We have just had an orgy of these in the latest of lectures of the Paris dressmaking houses.

All the lovely new cottons and linens, the printed chiffons and crepes, the crisp muslins, the diaphanous tulles—what woman could resist them? You would never believe that the "tweedy" striped and herringbone patterns, the rough, knobby weaves, some in plain colours and others in plaid or spotted designs, are made entirely of linen. A jacket and skirt of this material has exactly the appearance of a woolen costume, with the added advantage of being much cooler, in fact it is an ideal costume for the wraps of a very heavy, crinkled silk of soft, peach-color in the form of the old Venetian cape.

The old-fashioned golf cape has been revived by Lucien Lelong and he also sponsors a long, plain, circular, cape in place of the swapper coat, worn with a cotton frock. For example, there is a long navy blue woolen cape in his collection which is worn with a frock of light blue pique. In the same collection there are also afternoon ensembles which consist of a frock of printed crepe and a long cape of a plain colour in the same material and vice versa, a plain frock with a cape of the printed material. Several of the black afternoon frocks are worn with a three-quarter length cape of the same material lined with a print.

FRILLY CAPES

Frilly little capes in white organdie, pique or black tulle are shown with summer evening frocks and longer ones of pleated or gathered tulle are a feature of the evening costumes of Worth and other leading houses. Worth, by the by, is showing a novelty in the form of a waist-length cape of white ostrich feathers on which is painted a design matching that of the printed frock with it is worn.

Jean Patou has designed a new cape which is shown with street and afternoon frocks. Of the same material as the frock, this is carried straight across the shoulders at the front and draped to fasten on one side, falling in a long point at the back. This same designer is using any number of long capes in place of the jacket or three-quarter coat with frocks of linen, and tussore, cotton and printed crepe-de-Chine.

SURPRISE OF THE SEASON

A surprise of the season is the number of all-black frocks which are being shown for both day and evening wear. Black georgette, which has been ignored for several seasons, has again come to the fore for day-time frocks and black organdie, organza, net, tulle and taffeta are favorites for the evening. The dead black of these evening gowns is usually relieved by a cluster of flowers. A huge bunch calls lilies, sprays of mauve wisteria, clusters of pale pink and blue hydrangeas, and a nose-gay of bright red carnations are among the favorite decorations. Red carnations, by the by, are very much in vogue for both day and evening wear.

A study of these summer collections shows the reign of the printed chiffon very much on the wane, its place being taken by plain materials in lovely, soft, pastel colorings. The heavy, crinkled or blistered silk creeps (which are really by no means as heavy as they appear) still remain favorites for evening gowns and wraps. One of these, in the Molyneux collection, is one of the outstanding successes of the season. The frock is of a very "blister" crepe which looks almost like matelasse, in an exquisite shell-pink shade, made with a very full sweeping skirt and a perfectly plain fitted bodice cut square at the front and back and fastened up the front with a row of round, coral buttons. Over this is worn the most entrancing little jacket, with full basque and elbow sleeves, of deep rose.

GLAZED CHINTZ

Glazed chintz is a material which has come very much to the fore for all sorts of summer costumes. Evening gowns of this material in gay flower patterns are a popular novelty of the season. Beach costumes, too, sometimes in the form of a plain frock buttoned down the front and with little or no back, sometimes in the form of a wrap-around skirt and a short, sleeveless or short-sleeved jacket, are very attractive in this shiny cambric. A beach frock of beige chintz with a splashy design in tobacco brown worn over a plain brown jersey bathing suit, with wide-brimmed hat and sandals of brown canvas is decidedly smart.

This same shiny material is being extensively used for summer evening wraps and coats. There are especially effective worn with an all-black evening gown. Sleeveless waist-coats worn with the tailored suit of linen or shantung, and broad-brimmed garden hats and no-titled berets, with bag and gloves to match, are other uses for the gaily flowered chintz.

COLOUR IN JEWELLERY ACCENTS

Clips, Rings And Bracelets

Jewelry has been slowly undergoing certain changes which today give it fresh characteristics.

In the first place, it must make its initial appeal to the purchaser by proving its suitability to the dress fashions of the moment and to the various classifications, such as sports, town wear, formal afternoon, formal and informal evening modes.

Without this appeal even intrinsic beauty will not render the pieces acceptable, for costume at present is integrated; that is each item stands in demonstrable relation to all the other items, and jewelry must synthesize or, in other cases, contrast, the main theme of the costume. When properly used, it is always purposeful beyond the mere exploitation of its own intrinsic value or loveliness.

A second change is, based on the wide and approved use of semiprecious stones and even of simulated semiprecious stones; and also of what would once have been called "base materials." Today no material is "base" that can contribute to the interest of an ensemble. The unparalleled range of colors offered by semiprecious jewels give them definite advantages over precious gems, so that the choice is based not on cost but on decorative value in relation to a dress problem. To express this new standard, settings wrought with particularly fine workmanship often are given to stones that may be in themselves inexpensive, honoring them, as it were, for their sheer charm; and such materials as wood, leather, and bone may serve as backgrounds for good stones and fine craftsmanship.

The chemical laboratory is responsible for a third development. In the constant evolution of new synthetics, a number have been developed that are suitable to jewelry. Crystal and catallin, for instance, used as settings for stones have, on account of their specific character, inspired designs and styles that are different from any type of gold and silver settings.

These changes are all fundamental. Fundamental also is the new sensitiveness of designers to various "influences." We have seen Regency and Victorian influences translated into pieces suitable, for modern ways of living; more recent yet is the East Indian influence which is giving us Hindu, together with Turkish, Greek and African ornament as prototypes. The themes themselves are transitory, but the impulse to reflect in ornamental forms current events and interests is decisive and new.

As we look at the contemporary picture, having in thought costume integration, we shall become aware of the causes determining current jewelry design. For instance, we shall perceive that the reason why daytime necklaces are growing longer and being composed of multiple strands is because daytime necklaces are being cut lower. This explains also the return of the long earring, which delineates a pleasing contour above a brief décolletage. Draped bodices, pleated lapels, fluffy jabots all encourage the use of clips, for they control fullness better than brooches can. Elbow sleeves give importance to bracelets different in design from those made to wear over the long sleeves of winter frocks. The summer season also encourages the heavy informal ornaments appropriate to wear with cotton and linen frocks; and as these materials are carried over into the evenings, we find also a large number offered for informal after-dark occasions, which are only slightly more delicate than those made for the side lines. For each category of costume the season has brought a new message.

Highly Colored Stones

The vogue for highly colored stones is an expression, too, of the idea of costume integration. The amethyst is conspicuous at present because of the momentary vogue for all the purple tones. Regency color schemes are glad to make use of tourmalines, zircons, peridots, aquamarines, topazes, and lapis. Victorian styles are complemented by branch-coral, garnets, turquoise, rhinestones, and colored enamels. Oriental fabrics, brought into the foreground of fashion by the introduction of modified saris and thrams, by Turkish trouser hems, and Greek drapery, demand heavily fashioned ornaments of silver and gold, hammered and studded with stones.

American design has concerned itself largely with sports jewelry. Catallin, clear or opaque, carved or plain, is a favorite material.

BATHING CLOTHES

What's new in bathing clothes? What makes them look definitely 1935? Well, new colors, for instance. Strange greys and caramels and ink-blues are smart for the water. And new fabrics—satin, luster yarn fabrics, slithery and seal-like. Two flattering new colors are cocoa-nut and caramel, which are lovely with a moderate tan. Or try glacial blue. Or grey—but a deeper grey than we saw last year. Or yellow tinged with orange.

For bracelets and necklaces it is often cut into bold, irregular shapes, which are joined by bands of metal. Semiprecious stones and simulated stones often are imbedded in the catallin, and are usually cut in cabochon form, that is, high and pointed, without facets. Crystal is a little more delicate and is, perhaps, preferable for the evening frock of cotton or linen. Many other compositions appear on the counters. Our illustration shows one called "caviar," because of its granular appearance. It looks as if it might be molded of cork combined with some glistening material. The necklace, bracelet, ring and clip, all en suite, are popular. Color is rampant in sports jewelry, and rightly so, for it comes into its own against the background of nature.

Delicacy in Silver and Gold. Much gold filigree is seen in Regency pieces, which are characterized by delicacy and express the charms of the ultrafeminine woman. They are strongly contrasted with the ponderous ornaments of the Orient, where femininity has a different connotation. These are fashioned of silver and gold, embossed, chased and enameled, and set with carved stones and superbly cut cameos. The Oriental influence particularly as it sprang from Byzantium, was reflected in a good deal of the Victorian jewelry, so that this comes closer in some respects to Oriental design than does any other European style.

Outside of these categories, dwelling unperturbed in its beautiful ivory tower, we find "precious" jewelry. Although gentle zephyrs from foreign climes may sometimes waft their way into its studios, on the whole, its artists are nourished more by their own emotions and genius than by breezes from the outside. The clientele is conservative, and although it wants its pearls resting at frequent intervals, it never wants catallin or simulated stones. The design of fine jewelry this season is paying great attention to clasps, which are beautifully worked and, in the case of necklaces, often puzzlingly numerous. This is explained by the fact that necklaces are often made so as to break into segments which can be used as bracelets or rings. Such jewelry is styled for formal dress. Once upon a time it was the only kind of jewelry that ladies wore; but the value of ornament, with all types of costume has grown rapidly in appreciation with the acceptance of the accessory theme. It has become the completing touch to every kind of ensemble.

DRESSES FOR THE YOUNGER SET

Hollywood's younger players have been making extensive additions to their wardrobes lately.

Ida Lupino, who will appear opposite Gary Cooper in Paramount's "Peter Ibbetson," is wearing a becoming frock in blank and white cotton with a bias line and a full skirt.

At the front décolletage a pair of flame-colored poppies stress the importance of colour contrast, and the shoulders are capped by single boucles of the cotton fabric.

Kathleen Burke, who appears in Paramount's famous "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," is wearing a summer dinner dress of the "shirtmaker" variety.

It is in striped sports silk with four patch pockets, and the bodice carries huge lapels. A brilliant cerise handkerchief ties at the neckline and completes the charming ensemble.

TULIP COLLARS

The collar, fashioned exactly like a large tulip, is having a most successful run in Hollywood.

Among those who helped to popularize this fashion is Julie Haydon, who plays opposite Noel Coward in the Hecht-MacArthur Paramount film "The Scoundrel," which marks the famous Englishman's screen debut.

She wears a navy crepe frock with a tulip collar of stiffened white pique and a huge wooden buckle at the waist-line.

"THE NEW SARI" FASHION

The harbinger of a new cycle of fashions from Hollywood is the sari.

A long chiffon veil, worn with an evening wrap and usually clipped to the shoulder, goes over the head and trails glamorously. The fashion has been started by Loretta Young, who wears a black model, with big sequins, in Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount spectacle "The Crusades."

COIFFURES

That Are Different

Hair at the present time is treated a good deal like a fabric. It is cut, divided into sections, draped in a great variety of ways, and molded and twisted into arrangements composed of coils and clustered "sculptural" curls, which might be called ornament.

In the hands of professionals it lends itself so readily to manipulations of this kind that one wonders that such casual, amateurish styles were ever accepted by well-dressed women as those which they wore in the 1930's. And, indeed, for many years subsequent to that decade, when the cult of naturalism was rampant.

To-day, naturalism is certainly not rampant! Contemporary beauty is a result of artifice. No matter how lovely a foundation nature may have laid, it is but the raw material out of which are developed the ultimate effects. These, if they are chic, are compositions, or creations, by those experts, those "artists," who practice their crafts in beauty parlours.

Hair can be made so positive a factor in developing the most attractive aspects of a face, that among the beauty-parlour arts, that of the coiffure is fundamental.

NATURAL WAVE

The basis of all coiffures to-day is a permanent or a natural wave. The medium and the long bobs are the favourite cuts, for it is possible to do almost anything with hair of these lengths, whereas long hair will not conform to the style of clustered curls. So important is a contour that molds the head, that before a finger wave is given the hair is usually clipped into a number of different lengths, and very often thinned, so that it will lie upon the head, or fit the head, one might say, so closely that its own is well defined.

When these preliminaries have been completed, three considerations must be weighed in determining a coiffure:

1. The present style of hair-dressing.

2. The emphasis of the good points in a face and the concealment of the poorer ones.

3. The individuality of the wearer, both in relation to her manner and occupations and in relation to the clothes she will be likely to select.

The present style of hair-dressing reveals the ears, carries one portion of the hair forward from the crown and a second portion upward from the nape of the neck. These two basic lines are achieved by partings and elaborated by more partings—circular, diagonal, horizontal, perpendicular—that are very effective in developing and suppressing the planes of the face.

After the partings have been laid in, the hair, at strategic positions, is divided into very small strands and these are coiled into small, rigid curls. The strategic position for the forward movement may be the forehead, where the curls will be formed into a bang, or into a fringe, or into a circlet. The upward movement may be expressed by a row of sculptured curls laid in on a level with the top of the ears, or one which ascends from the ears to the crown; or a more lofty top-knot. These areas of curls are united by soft finger waves.

LITTLE GROTESQUE

If all this sounds a little grotesque, it must be remembered that it is only a technique, a method, used for producing certain effects, which, after the hair is brushed out loosely, obliterate the means by which the results have been obtained.

The development of the finest qualities in a face is a very individual problem always, for no two faces have the same balance of attractive and less attractive planes and lines; one face may have a profile that gives no problem whatever and a full face that is difficult, and vice versa. In general it may be said, however, that the fashionable puff curls on the forehead are effective in diminishing the apparent breadth of a face and the weight of heavy features, largely because the curls become the center of attention. It is logical, then, that a narrow face with delicate traits may be too much attenuated by such a bang, and can wear more becomingly a circlet of curls around or partly around the forehead, whose effort will be to add force and impressiveness to a slender brow. Moreover, in the first case cited—that of the too heavy features—it would be a pity to use the bang as a remedy if the hairline happened to be particularly attractive. In this case some other diminishing contour should be designed which would leave unobscured the beauty of a finely delineated forehead.

FROM THE NECKLINE

Hair swept up from the neckline is particularly flattering to a well-proportioned head, but the proportions existing between neck and head will determine whether the row of curls above this area of plain or gently undulated hair shall be horizontal, or V-shaped, or diagonal. The experienced operator is able to judge these matters without trial by error.

Another element enters into the determination of the coiffure design and that is the particular style of the client. Is she tailor-made or fluffy? Will she wear sailor hats or Regency bonnets? Of course a coiffure can not be changed as often as a hat is, and of course it will reveal itself without any hat for longer periods of time than with one; but, nevertheless, the prevailing hat silhouettes must be considered.

TAFFETA FOR CHARM

Mary Ellis, who stars in Paramount's "Paris In Spring," considers that taffeta is a material that never loses its peculiar charm.

In the film she wears an afternoon dress of black taffeta, made with a tight bodice in late Victorian style. The bodice buttons down the front and ends in a chic little basque—also shaped to the figure—with a narrow belt. The long skirt, which falls from the basque, is flared to fall in graceful lines.

The short sleeves of this dress enable Miss Ellis to wear the long gloves which are her pet extravagance. In this case the gloves are of black suede and match her French-heeled Court shoes. The ensemble is completed by a silver fox fur, and a tiny black taffeta hat with an aigrette rising from the centre of the crown.

In "Paris In Spring," Miss Ellis shows that silver plecting is the latest fad for negligee trimming.

She wears a delightful boudoir gown of flame-colored tulle, with ruchings edged in silver. It has large and graceful sleeves, falling from a flesh-colored slip which forms a deep yoke.

It is only for boudoir wear that Miss Ellis likes to wear flame and other brilliant colors. For the daytime she chooses navy blue, black, grey, brown or some pastel tint. For evening gowns she likes black or white. Crude colors are barred, and she considers that red should be worn only by blondes.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

ONE HOUR LATE

Joe Morrison, youthful tenor, who first introduced the song "The Last Round-Up," plays his first leading role for the screen in the Paramount film, "One Hour Late," coming to the Alhambra Theatre on Wednesday.

Morrison has been in but two films since he arrived in the film city. Although it is unusual for a newcomer to draw a leading role right off the bat, Paramount, who has Morrison under contract, is giving him featured leads at once.

In addition to Morrison, the film features Helen Twelvetrees, Conrad Nagel, Arline Judge, Toby Wing, Edward Craven, Raymond Milland and Gail Patrick.

Morrison is cast as a young clerk who wants to marry the girl of his dreams. But she puts him off while her boss, the victim of unrequited love, tries to find companionship, and his wife tries to find freedom.

Then, in one dramatic hour, the lives, the loves and the plans of these unusual people are changed completely. How this is brought about is entertainingly told in a dramatic finale.

SWEET MUSIC

Radio fans who often have wished that they might experience the thrill of actually seeing Rudy Vallee and his famous Connecticut Yankee band putting on their programme before the microphones in the great N.B.C. headquarters in New York City will have this wish gratified when they witness Vallee in his Warner Bros. picture, "Sweet Music," which comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow.

For one of the numerous wonderful settings in "Sweet Music" is an "ultra-modern" broadcasting studio, reproduced almost identically from the big New York radio studios.

Another impressive setting is the streamline train, as well as a futuristic conception of the "streamline depot," designed for Bobby Connolly's elaborate dance production number in which Vallee sings, "Fare Thee Well, Annabelle" while Ann Dvorak leads a group of talented dancers in a novel dance routine. Miss Dvorak also joins in the singing with the ensemble.

THE KING'S

Horton At His Best

"$10 Raise the latest Fox vehicle which is now showing at the King's Theatre is an ideally suited picture for Edward Everett Horton, who is in the starring role."

The picture shows you Horton, a timid ledger keeper for a number of years, suddenly finding himself in love with the latest addition to the office staff, a beautiful stenotypist in the person of Karen Morley. Then Horton's attentions turn to balancing his pay check in the event of getting "hitched up." His boss becomes a tyrant to him instead of the "prince of a fellow." Under the patient guidance of his new found love he is finally cured of his inferiority complex and his fear of the boss. Not only he is swindled "good and proper" and turns his humiliation at the hands of a sharper into profit for himself, does the worm turn and the erstwhile unassuming office slave changes into a commanding personality.

Throughout the picture Horton is seen in many different moods and his characterization as the ledger clerk who turns from timidity to a commanding personality is all that could be desired. He received admirable support from Karen Morley and the rest of the cast.—O.M.O.

BABBITT

At The Alhambra

The novel which won for Sinclair Lewis the honour of being the first American to win the Nobel prize for literature, is the feature attraction at the Alhambra Theatre. In its adaptation for the screen, all the best points have been retained and the subtle humour, philosophy, dramatic power and irony so typical of Lewis, makes this one of the best pictures of its kind, produced for some time.

Guy Kibbee, as the husband, and Aline MacMahon as his wife are perfectly suited for the roles they take and both give displays which will remain in one's mind for some time to come.

The acting throughout is excellent, the large supporting cast includes Claire Dodd, Maxine Doyle, Minor Watson, Minna Gombell, Alan Hale, Berton Churchill, Harry Tyler, Russel Hicks, Arthur Aylesworth, Mary Treen and Nan Gray. N.A.E.

PARLIAMENT

Stored away by the King's printer are a number of surplus copies of old Acts of Parliament. A correspondent bought some of these the other day for a few shillings. One of the most interesting was an Act passed in 1661. On the title page was a fine engraving of the royal arms, while the Act itself was printed in the ancient black letter. It dealt with the compul-

MOST BEAUTIFUL GIRL
IN WORLD

Mr. C. B. Cochran thumped his first down on the table. "I tell you she's the most beautiful girl in the world," he cried.

"Her name is Abdaga, and I found her two years ago in the Atlas Mountains. I have decided that she is to lead the parade."

Mr. Cochran was speaking at a luncheon given in connection with the forthcoming Mammoth Cabaret which is to be a feature of the ball at Grosvenor House on July 10 in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

"When I first saw this girl," Mr. Cochran continued, "she was only thirteen—a fair-haired Berber of really astonishing beauty. It has taken two years' negotiation with the French Government to get permission to bring her into this country."

The cabaret for this Jubilee year appeal ball is going to be bigger than anything else of its kind ever attempted.

sory burial in woollen, so to decrease the importation of linen. Sheep's wool only had to be used, and elaborate arrangements were made for parish registers and affidavits, so to enforce the law. Any magistrate, parson, or churchwarden who neglected his duty was liable to a fine of £5.

These ancient Acts are beginning to be sought for by collectors, not only because of their interesting associations, but because they provide excellent examples of printing in the 17th and 18th centuries.

10,000 DOCTORS

Discuss A "Brain Bath"

Described in popular language as a "shower-bath for the brain," a new method of treating such infections of the brain and nervous system as infantile paralysis, St. Vitus's dance, sleeping sickness and some forms of meningitis, was the chief topic for discussion at one of the largest medical gatherings ever held in the United States.

Some 10,000 doctors from the United States and Canada, including several Nobel Prize winners, have come to this seaside resort for the first joint meeting of the American and Canadian Medical Associations, and a film, demonstrating the "brain bath" was one of the first exhibits to attract attention.

Prepared by Dr. George Retan, of Syracuse University, who has been working on the subject for five years, it shows how a simple solution of common salt and water, is injected into a vein at the ankle, and then how fluids that accumulate in the brain and spinal column are drained off by means of a needle inserted at the lower end of the spine.

REMARKABLE CLAIMS
Technically described as "forced perivascular drainage of the central nervous system," the manner in which it acts is admittedly not yet understood. It is suggested that salt water may wash away viruses causing disease, may stimulate the body to produce more virus destroying antibodies or may serve as an improved "transportation system" to carry existing antibodies more speedily and effectively into affected areas. In any case, remarkable results are reported to have been achieved by the treatment.

A paralysed tongue was found to return to normal within half an hour. In six cases of infantile paralysis four were treated within five days of the onset of the disease and before paralysis appeared, and the patients recovered completely. The remaining two were treated after paralysis appeared, and while one died the other recovered after receiving four baths. Two "brain baths" restored a boy severely afflicted with St. Vitus's dance to normal health.

LORD BYNG LOVED ANIMALS

Officers and men who served under the late Lord Byng in the war pay tribute to his great love for animals. As a cavalryman he resented the slightest cruelty to a horse.

On one occasion when walking alone down a road, which was being shelled, wearing a rain coat and a soft cap without any brail on it, he came upon a sergeant of a mounted unit ill-treating a horse because of the animal's fear of the high explosives.

RUDENESS REWARDED
The sergeant resented advice and told him rudely—not knowing who it was—to take charge of the animal. This the General did, and led it down the road after pacifying it. The sequel was that the sergeant lost his stripes and was transferred to an infantry unit.

RETURN TO GOLD

A "Reckless Gamble"

The case against Great Britain returning to the gold standard is outlined by Mr. H. D. Henderson, a member of the Economic Advisory Council, in Lloyds Bank Ltd., "Monthly Review."

"In my judgment," writes Mr. Henderson, "the absence of a fixed parity between sterling and gold has been an essential condition of the recovery which has taken place in Great Britain. It has enabled our authorities to maintain, as they could hardly have done otherwise, conditions of cheap and abundant money without interruption over a period of several years."

"That cheap money has been a material factor in our recovery is common ground, but it is important to appreciate that the benefits that have ensued have depended on the fact that the cheap money policy has been sustained for a long period."

FOREIGN CONFIDENCE

"Had sterling been linked to gold there would have been frequent changes in the Bank rate during that period. Exchange movements of recent years were due to large-scale capital movements which had occurred in accordance with the vagaries of foreign confidence."

"It is these vagaries of foreign confidence that the advocates of stabilisation propose in effect to exalt as the supreme directors of our economic life, as the arbiters of the question whether our trade recovery should be allowed to proceed or should be roughly reversed," adds Mr. Henderson.

"The risk is indeed so serious and so great, the possible benefits are so contingent and remote, as to render the policy of early stabilisation a reckless gamble from the standpoint of our national interests."

ROMANCE IN MANHATTAN

When audiences see Francis Lederer struck down and run over by a taxi in one of the street scenes of "Romance in Manhattan," they will be witnessing a genuine accident that was not written into the script of the RKO-Radio romantic drama. The picture comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday.

It happened when Lederer, who is a stickler for realism, insisted that he be allowed to fight his way through speeding traffic in a street scene instead of having the scene "faked."

As a result, he was struck by a taxi, the wheels of which passed over his feet and ankles. By a stroke of luck, he received only a few bruises.

A humorous touch was given to the incident by the emotions felt during the accident by the star. He declared that his only reaction to the car passing over him, was to say to himself: "Goodness, I thought they were heavier!"

Ginger Rogers, co-starred in "Romance in Manhattan," which has Arthur Hohl, J. Farrell MacDonald, Jimmie Butler, Helen Ware and Billy Malloy in the cast. Stephen Roberts directed and Pandro S. Berman produced.

MARK OF THE VAMPIRE

Uncanny mystery, weird "un-dead" vampires figuring in blood-chilling thrills, and a strange romance told against a background of sinister shadows are the highlights of "Mark of the Vampire," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new detective-terror drama opening on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre.

Lionel Barrymore, as the strange Professor Zeien, student of demonology, plays the outstanding character role in the new picture, and the horrible Count Mora, vampire menace, is enacted with gruesome exactitude by Bela Lugosi of "Dracula" fame. He is teamed with Carol Borland, newly discovered "Vampire Girl" who is seen as the daughter Luna, Holmes Herbert, James Bradbury Jr. play two other "un-dead" terror characters in the weird story.

KISS AND MAKE-UP

A gay, romantic comedy of a handsome beauty doctor to whom thousands of women flock for his "special" treatments, "Kiss and Make-Up" is currently playing at the Queen's Theatre.

The film presents Cary Grant as the owner and chief doctor of a modern temple of beauty to which the entire feminine population flocks, begging for his treatments. One of his patients, Genevieve Tobin, wealthy wife of Edward Everett Horton, is just about through with her series of treatments, which have turned her into the doctor's most beautiful and perfect creation.

The doctor falls in love with her. The husband, fed up with all the beauty-regulations, walks out and leaves her to new love.

Grant marries her with a heart full of romance, but his bliss is completely ruined when he comes face to face with the effects of his stringent beauty rules. He realizes she is just a creation of powder and paint.

How he escapes and eventually finds his heart-mate in a simple unspooled girl who needs no make-up to bring out her charms, brings the film to a happy ending.

SCOT PROPOSES

The staff at the London Central Telegraph Office—except perhaps the Scotsmen—had a great laugh recently.

A sixpenny (nine-word) telegram was received from Glasgow. It contained a pressing proposal of marriage.

But it was not "reply paid."

Happy Thoughts

Marriage is called a tie, and men should be careful in the selection of their ties lest they get it in the neck.

When you feel that a pretty girl is fishing for you be careful how you bite. You may get the hook.

The man who remains a bachelor all the days of his life gets only a half portion of the banquet board of earthly felicity.

THE WHITE PARADE

One of the most human, compelling and dramatic screen narratives in years, Jesse L. Lasky's "The White Parade" is showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow and is recommended as superlative entertainment. It is a story with a soul!

"The White Parade" may safely be described as an extraordinary picture. Extraordinary not only in its material, but in the approach of Director Irving Cummings and Producer Lasky to the telling of their story. It is a gripping and poignant drama, and the manner of its presentation—buoyant and skillful—is a distinct contribution to screen history.

Loretta Young offers a masterly performance as the young student nurse who is the heroine.

John Boles contributes a splendid characterization as the rich young suitor who, baffled by the elusive secret of these girl nurses, seeks to persuade her that her life lies here. There are memorable performances also by Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland and Astrid Allwyn.

VAGRANT FINED

A fine of $30 or in default one month's hard labour was meted out to Vincent Andrew Newnes, aged 26, unemployed when brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday convicted of being a vagrant in the Colony.

Detective Sergeant Mottram asked that defendant be committed to the House of Detention pending arrangements to be made for his departure for India. The court so ordered.

Defendant lived in a district three days' journey from Calcutta.

An unemployed Indian, Teja Singh, also appeared on a charge of having entered the Colony without a valid passport.

Detective Sergeant Mottram stated that defendant was found in the watchmen's quarters of the Cosmopolitan Docks. Defendant told the Police that he had left India three years ago when he went to Canton, where, after staying a day, he left for Macao. That was two years ago, and defendant had been employed there until fifteen days ago, when he came to Hong Kong.

The Police enquiries elicited the information that defendant had been in Hong Kong for three months.

Sergeant Mottram asked His Worship to take a serious view of the case, as defendant had entered the Colony absolutely without authority. There were doubts regarding defendant's story, as he had neither money nor papers, and the prosecution could not see how he could get to India.

ALLEGED ARSON

The case in which Ng Yuen-chow is charged with alleged arson at the Sam Man Towel Manufacturing Company, and Ng King-chiu with alleged procuration of the crime, was concluded before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon. Mr. L. d'Almada appeared for the first defendant, and Mr. P. H. Sin for the second defendant. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, appeared for the prosecution, and continued the proceedings with the cross-examination of Cheng Tze-pang, agent for the American Asiatic Underwriters, who on being questioned by Mr. Fraser stated that 104, Fuk Wah Street was insured against fire. The policy covered all goods, furniture and fittings.

On being asked by Mr. Sin whether he had surveyed the premises before the policy was issued, witness stated that he had.

Mr. Fraser then called Lai Kwong, stationed at the Shamshuipo Police who gave evidence or having taken the defendants to the Police Station on the night of the fire but was not present when they were charged.

OBJECTION OVER-ruLED

Witness then produced a written statement to which Mr. D'Almada objected but the objection was not upheld by His Worship. After further evidence was taken the two men were committed to stand their trial at the next Sessions at the Supreme Court.

CASE ADJOURNED

Further evidence was heard before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon in the case in which four men, Yeung Ming alias Yeung Hong-ki, Tsang Ming alias Tsang Hop-ying, Wan Cheung and Chau Chuen were charged with possession of counterfeit coins and moulds for making coins. The evidence of Foo Yuk Cheung was heard in which he testified to the statements made by the defendants when the charges were read to them. The first defendant then said that it was Lai Tam, the fifth man in the party (who is not charged) who was responsible for the possession of the moulds. After his evidence the case was adjourned until Monday afternoon July 8.

AT THE MARINE COURT

Before Commander Newell at the Marine Court yesterday morning, Captain P. H. Olsen, master of the Norwegian steamer, the Graciosa, was charged with taking his ship out of the waters of the Victoria Harbour, without having obtained a clearance from the Harbour Office, on the 18th of last month.

The accused admitted the charge and was fined $25.

TRAVELLING SALESMAN IN TROUBLE

Appearing on remand before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on a charge of attempting to sell or offer for sale a return portion of a ticket issued by the Chinese Section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, Leung Yau Fuk, 48, travelling trader, was fined $5 on an amended charge of attempting to sell contrary to Section 38, Sub-Section 3 of Ordinance 21 of 1909.

Detective-Sergeant Davis prosecuted while Mr. I. B. Trevor, Traffic Manager of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, was also present. The Magistrate: What is a ticket?

Mr. Trevor: A receipt for fare paid between two places.

The Magistrate: I don't think it can be called receipt. A ticket is more properly a note of the existence of a contract between the Administration and the traveller.

His Worship added that in the case of a return ticket the traveller surrenders the half on reaching Kowloon to the agent of the Administration and not to the agent of the Administrator.

Pun Chi Fan, Traffic Inspector, testified that he was on duty at the Kowloon Station at 3.30 p.m. on July 1 when his attention was drawn to the defendant by the head watchman. Witness approached the defendant and overheard him attempting to sell the return half of a third-class Canton ticket, to a Chinese lady and gentleman, but they refused.

Replying to his Worship, the witness said a return half ticket was good for one week.

COOLIE TURNS THIEF

Pun Hin, aged 45, street coolie, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday with larceny of a jacket and a pair of trousers from 47, Connaught Road Central, second floor, the property of Wong Shiu, larceny of a pair of trousers from 16, Des Voeux Road West, third floor, the property of Ng Chui Pak. Defendant was seen to attempt to pawn the clothing and when questioned admitted stealing them from the addresses. It was disclosed that defendant had only a few weeks ago signed a bond to be of good behaviour.

For breaking his bond, defendant was fined $25 or three weeks' hard labour, on the first charge was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour to be concurrent with the first term, and on the second to another six weeks' hard labour, this to be consecutive. Detective-Sergeant Gowan prosecuted.

THEFT OF KNIVES

Two months' hard labour was imposed on Chan Hau, an unemployed who had three previous convictions, when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with the theft of four table knives the property of Raiffe Zalle, of 31 Ashley Road, ground floor.

Inspector Stimson stated that the man was seen to put his hand through the window and take the knives which were close by. The inmates dared not raise the alarm as they feared he might be armed. Later in the day he was arrested by a district watchman carrying the knives.

A similar sentence was meted out to Leung Hin, 39, who stole a five-cent piece and a cigarette from a stall in Hamilton Street near Shanghai Street. The defendant had a previous conviction for stealing a cash box. Inspector Shannon prosecuted.

A 34-year-old widow, Chui Sze, who was arrested on information and found to be in possession of a quantity of "po-pu" lottery tickets, was brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday and fined $75 or six weeks' hard labour in default.

Leung Tai, unemployed, was sentenced to one year's hard labour at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for returning before his term of banishment for ten years had expired. The accused served ten years in 1924 for armed robbery.

For being in unlawful possession of 18 rice-bowls and 6 plates, Tang

In her will, deceased appointed her husband, Mr. R. M. Dyer, as sole executor.

Miss Alice Frances Morris, who died at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, Middlesex, on December 14, 1934, left local estate to the value of $58,500. The deceased was formerly of 48 Elliston Road, Streatham, Surrey. An application by Mr. H. J. Armstrong, solicitor, the lawful attorney for sealing the certified copy of the probate of the will has been granted.

Pul, aged 34, was fined $15 or two weeks' hard labour when he appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday. Defendant stated that he had picked the articles up, and had kept them for his own use. The articles were valued at about $1.50.

Wong Chui, aged 26, who was banished for life on October 5, 1933, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday with returning to the Colony. Defendant said he came back to see his mother. Sentence of one year imprisonment was passed. Another man, Chan King-yiu, was also charged with returning before the expiration of his term, and was sentenced to six months' hard labour. He was banished for 10 years in April, 1934.

A charge of cruelty to a kitten was brought against a man, Lam San, before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Sergeant Nolan stated that the kitten was placed in a cloth with both ends of the bag tied up. The cat escaped last night.

The Magistrate remarked that the fact that the kitten escaped from policy custody went to show that the defendant knew that steps had to be taken to secure the animal.

"In the circumstances the cat has proved the case," said the Magistrate in discharging the defendant.

EX-KING GEORGE IN DIVORCE SUIT

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Bucharest, July 3.

Rumours of a reconciliation between ex-King George of Greece and his wife Elisabeth, which have probably arisen in view of the possibility of the restoration of the Greek Monarchy at a not distant date, seem to have been premature.

The ex-King has now received a summons from the Bucharest Court of Appeal to answer a divorce suit brought by his wife, who is sister to King Carol.

The summons also contains a paragraph to the effect that in case of the defendant's non-appearance, judgment will be pronounced in his absence.—Transocean Kuo Min.

ABYSSINIAN ARMY

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Addis Abeba, July 3.

The strength of 140,000, attributed to the Abyssinian Army in a recent report by "Le Matin," is declared by the war minister here to be very wide of the mark. The present strength of the Army he stated was 350,000 but if the Abyssinians are compelled to mobilise this could be raised within two to four weeks to 800,000.

The Abyssinian Army, went on the war minister, was equipped partly with modern and partly with old weapons but all sections had been trained in methods of modern warfare.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The statement adds that further arrests may be expected. Among the persons taken into custody were the assistant public prosecutor Dr. Hueff, the president of the district court, Kuehn, Zaehle and some others.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The successor to the late Bishop Bares, to the Catholic Bishopric in Berlin, it is learned, will be Count Von Perysling-Lichtenegg-Moos, who is at present the Bishop of Eichstaett, in Bavaria.

Bishop Moos began his career as legal adviser in the Bavarian Foreign Ministry, then later being appointed Secretary to the Bavarian Diplomatic Legation in Rome.

In 1908, however, he left the Bavarian Diplomatic Service to study theology and took the vows of priesthood four years later. After holding various clerical offices in Munich, he was appointed Bishop in the Reichstaet in 1932.—Transocean Kuo Min.

SPEECH DAY AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Sir Thomas Southorn Gives Away Awards

Amid spontaneous clapping from all present, and the firing of crackers, Sir Thomas and Lady Southorn made an auspicious entry accompanied by Mr. Lee, private secretary into the Main Hall of the College Stanley, yesterday, when a large gathering was present to hear a very satisfactory report presented by the Headmaster on the occasion of the annual Speech Day.

A prayer was offered by the Rev. G. K. Carpenter, after which Bishop Hall addressed the gathering.

His Excellency's Speech

After giving away the prizes His Excellency said:—My Lord Bishop, Mr. Martin, Ladies and Gentlemen and Boys of St. Stephen's College.

As you are aware, speeches like Legislative Enactments always have a preamble but in this hot Hong Kong summer you will be glad to know that the length of the speech is not necessarily proportionate to the length of the preamble. Your Headmaster has given us an admirable example of brevity in his report and that example I propose to follow.

Ever since I had the honour of opening your new buildings some five years ago I have followed the history of this school with the greatest interest and I congratulate the Headmaster on the fine record of progress which the school is able to show. It is clear from the report that progress in work and play alike has been well maintained during the past year and I would specially congratulate the school on the lively interest in its welfare taken by the Old Boys. Few things can give the staff and managers of a school more encouragement than the knowledge that the Old Boys feel they still have a stake in their old school and are ready to show their appreciation by active help. I would urge all boys as they leave to join the Old Boys Association and to maintain their interest in St. Stephen's College.

FINEST SITE IN COLONY

I should also like to congratulate the Headmaster on the excellent health enjoyed by the school. To the outward eye this is, and must always have been, one of the finest sites in the Colony and it is not surprising that it should have been chosen in the early forties as the site for a military cantonment. It turned out, as you know, a whitened sepulchre but modern science has shown us how to overcome the difficulties of bad water and malaria and it is a great satisfaction to the Government to see this wonderful site again devoted to a worthy purpose.

I am glad to know that St. Stephen's College attracts students from parts far distant from Hong Kong. I understand that in June new boys have come from Yunnan, Szechuan, Shanghai, Peiping and the Straits Settlements. More of our Hong Kong parents might well consider whether their sons would not benefit from life in a Boarding School run in such pleasant surroundings on Public School lines. I would not be thought to minimize the value of home life but it has to be admitted that in many homes there are too many distractions and a freedom which might almost be described as license.

LOVE OF BEAUTY

The beauty of its surroundings cannot but have an influence on the life of a school and the mentality of its students. I was reading a few days ago a speech made by the Headmaster of Rugby School at a school prize-giving in which he urged the students to love beauty. Here the beauty of your surroundings is always before your eyes. If you live and work at St. Stephen's a love of beauty must become a part of your very nature and I would urge you to let that love of beauty permeate your whole lives till you can find beauty in every subject, beauty in work well done, in games well played, in truth, in honesty and in service for others, beauty in short, in well ordered lives, lived according to the principles taught at St. Stephen's College.

This is a great year in the history of our Empire, the King's Silver Jubilee year, and I shall therefore close my remarks by reminding you of His Majesty's message to the children of His Empire on Jubilee Day. Those of you who are not British subjects will find no difficulty in applying His Majesty's words to your own circumstances.

"I ask you to remember that in days to come you will be the citizens of a great Empire. As you grow up, keep this thought before you; and when the time comes be ready and proud to give to your country the service of your work, your mind and your heart."

THOSE PRESENT

Lady Southorn was the recipient of a bouquet of flowers, presented by Tso Wai Huan, grandson of Dr. Tso, which was received graciously amid much applause. At the same time, Sir Thomas was presented with a vase and black-wood stand by Ip Hung Shui, a senior prize winner. Sir Thomas received his gift first, and rose at once to join the applause that greeted Lady Southorn when she received her gift. Amongst those present were:

Rt. Rev. Bishop of Mrs. R. O. Hall, Hon. Sir H. E. and Lady Pollock, Hon. Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Tso, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. J. Owen Hughes, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Trautman, Hon. Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Sayer, Mr. and Mrs. Mok Kon Sang, Mr. and Mrs. Li Hoi Tung, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Chau, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Maunders, Mr. and Mrs. Cheung Wing Kue, Rev. and Mrs. G. K. Carpenter, Mr. M. K. Lo, Prof. and Mrs. Herliotz Mr. and Mrs. Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. De Martin, Mr. F. J. de Rome, Mr. G. W. Reeve, Mr. W. L. Handyside, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pegg, Dr. and Mrs. Pope, Dr. and Mrs. Black, Miss E. S. Atkins, Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Blanchett, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Franks, Col. and Miss Dowbiggin, Dr. and Mrs. More, Mr. and Mrs. Purdie, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Butters and Mr. Li Chor Chee.

THE LEAGUE

World Still Has Faith

Hope for the increasing strength and authority of the League of Nations was expressed by Sir Austen Chamberlain when he inaugurated the eighth International Studies Conference on Collective Security at the London School of Economics, in London.

"At no time in the history of this country," said Sir Austen, "has so wide a public taken so anxious an interest in foreign affairs. The League of Nations is not the first effort in history to find some power to overawe the passions of nations and preserve law. Earlier efforts sometimes never came to fruition or endured for a time and passed away."

"We may ask ourselves whether the League of Nations is to have the same fate or to grow gradually in strength and authority. I know of no substitute for it, and I am convinced that the need for it is so great that it will survive its infantile illnesses and gradually play a greater part."

FOR COLLECTIVE SECURITY

Professor M. Bourquin, said that to eliminate war it was not sufficient to condemn it or to erect sanctions against a State guilty of recourse to it. The great problem to be faced was to take away from war its causes and to give to peaceful procedure what had been the role of war.

Mr. Allen W. Davies (New York) said that the nearer one got to Europe from the United States the less one was impressed with any danger of another war, but at the same time we must recognize that forces were at work which made for war.

The conference, over which Lord Meston presides, is attended by experts from 20 nations, and will discuss the problems of collective security.

ADM. CHAN CHAK IN COLONY

Mission Explained At Interview

Special police precautions were taken yesterday upon the arrival of the a.s. President Hoover from Shanghai aboard which Admiral Chan Chak came down here as the emissary of the Central Government to take charge of affairs in connection with the two rebel cruisers and to see their return to the North.

Accompanying the Admiral were his wife, children and Staff Officers, Yung Yim Nam and Ng Mee Chai.

In an interview granted to a representative of the "Daily Press," Admiral Chan Chak said: "The two cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen left Canton unexpectedly and the Central Government had no idea of their intention. After their departure from Canton I understand that General Chen Chai Tong wired to the Central authorities requesting them to send cruisers down here to take appropriate measures against the rebel cruisers. It was also asked to escort them North. At the same time the cruisers also sent representatives to Nanking and had also wired to the Central Government asking the Central Government to take them back which request was acceded to. On this account I am sent down here and my mission here is to take these cruisers back with me to the North. The cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen during their sojourn in the Colony had been most cordially treated by the Hong Kong authorities and on behalf of the Central Government I beg to thank them."

What is the status of these cruisers at the present moment? enquired our representative.

I do not know whether they will be taken back to the Nanking-Navy or what. This will have to be decided by the authorities upon the arrival of the cruisers there, replied the Admiral.

Is it true that a squadron with the inclusion of these two cruisers will be formed under your command in the near future?—There is no truth in it.

What is your definite mission to Hong Kong?—As I have already stated I am here to bring the cruisers back North and as to when that will be I am still undecided. So many small details will have to be gone through before any definite date can be settled.

Were there any conditions as to the surrender of these two cruisers made by them?—There had been no conditions or stipulations made whatsoever by these two cruisers. They themselves had also sent representatives direct to Nanking.

How are the relationships between the North and the South at present?—The co-operation between these two had never been better. In fact great progress had been effected of late to the extent that there is a better understanding between the North and the South.

Admiral Chan and his party left shortly after to take up residence.

JAPANESE EXPERT NOT TO "ASSIST"

Shanghai, June 28.

Angered by the suggestion that Dr. Inada, the Japanese telephone expert, is being brought to Shanghai to "assist" the British expert, Major Brown, on a committee to investigate the telephone situation here, the Japanese Foreign Relations Investigation Committee, in the course of a meeting on Thursday, decided to recommend to the Japanese Residents' Corporation that arrangements be made for Dr. Inada to be chairman of the committee.

Members of the committee pointed to Dr. Inada's world-wide reputation as a radio and telephone expert, and insisted that this reputation made it impossible for him to act in a subordinate capacity to the British expert selected. Accordingly they decided to recommend to the Japanese community organization that he be appointed chairman of the committee.

Whether or not the Japanese Residents' Corporation will take action on this recommendation is not known, as a meeting of the corporation has not been convened as yet.

CHINESE FILM STAR

Miss Butterfly Wu In Colony

A large gathering of admirers of that famous Chinese actress Miss Butterfly Wu turned out at the Kowloon Wharf yesterday morning to greet her on her arrival here by the a.s. Conte Rosso after a sojourn of about five months in Europe.

The Conte Rosso arrived at about 3.20 a.m. and it was not till after 7 a.m. that our representative was able to get on board to interview Miss Wu.

"How has your stay been like in Europe, Miss Wu?" asked our representative.

"It was delightful, everybody was so kind to me and they entertained me lavishly. My countrymen also looked after me and I spent a very enjoyable time over there."

Continuing Miss Wu said "My mission to Moscow was to attend the International Film Congress as a representative of the Star Film Co. of China. We arrived there late and the other participants at the Congress had already exhibited their various pictures but the officials very graciously consented to screen the four pictures which we brought with us in which I was starred. These pictures created a very good impression and many spoke of the great possibilities of the Chinese Film Industry."

"We left Shanghai in February and arrived at Moscow via Vladivostok. I took part in the Congress and after the termination of that I stayed in Moscow for a while where the four pictures which we brought with us were shown to the populace."

EXTENSIVE TOUR

From there we went to Berlin, then to Paris and to London. In London I was feted by my countrymen and Mr. Quo Tai Chi, the Ambassador and his wife. I returned later to Paris where the Chinese students entertained me and my party. My next stop was in Rome and after a short sojourn there we returned to London whence we took boat for China."

NO PLANS YET

Miss Wu who is accompanied by Mr. Chow Kim Wan looked charming in a white ensemble with beautifully waved hair. Asked if she intended making pictures in Hong Kong the star replied that she has no plans for the present. She is making a trip to Canton after which she will in all probability return to the North.

A party of "film executives" in Hong Kong specially chartered the steam launch Man Hing and took off the "Idol of millions" from the Kowloon Wharf and at Blake Pier another crowd awaited her. She was "Shoo" all the way by the film companies and later took up residence at the Gloucester Hotel.

Miss Wu stated that due to pressure of time she would not be going to Canton but instead will remain in the colony until July 6 when she will sail for Shanghai by the a.s. President McKinley.

"Wherever I went I was asked by the foreign film concerns to act in their productions but as I am bound by contract to the Star Film Co., I had to turn them all down. My presence on the stage here is also impossible due to the same reason," stated Miss Wu.

"I like the British studios and pictures better than the rest and I think there is a great future for the British industry," said Miss Wu in reply to a question from our representative. Miss Wu further stated that she would like to remain in Hong Kong for a longer spell and as for the same reasons as above she finds that she cannot afford the time as before she left Shanghai for the Film Congress she was in the middle of a new production which she must now complete.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Wu and her party called on Sir Robert Ho Tung.

CANTON WELCOME

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Admirers and movie fans of Miss Butterfly Wu are making preparations for a big welcome to-morrow in her honour as she is due to arrive here in the morning. A luncheon will be given by the Motion Picture Theatres Guild in her honour, and local theatres have

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Local Americans Celebrate

The American National Independence Day was marked yesterday by an "At Home" at the American Club when Mr. L. H. Gourley, Acting Consul-General for the United States in Hong Kong and members of the American community entertained their foreign friends on a most lavish scale.

The Club room was tastefully decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack in the "places of honour."

Mr. Gourley proposed the toast of "The King" while Sir Atholl MacGregor gave the toast of the President of the United States.

THOSE PRESENT

Captain W. J. R. Cragg, A.D.C., was present representing His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southorn, while others present included Commodore and Mrs. C. G. Sedgwick, Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman, Hon. Mr. E. Taylor, Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell, Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, and Miss Dowbiggin, Messrs. A. W. G. H. Grantham, W. J. Carlie, E. W. Hamilton, W. R. Scott, Wong Kwong-tin, Li Tse-fong, Kan Tong-po, G. She, G. E. R. Divett, A. L. Sullivan, C. Champkin, W. Harper and numerous other ladies and gentlemen both of the American and British communities.

Members of the Consular Body of Hong Kong were also in attendance.

Placed near the entrance of the Club was a model of the new Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank building with an arrow indicating the new headquarters of the American Club in that magnificent block.

THE MODERN WORLD

Almost Destroys Liberty

The modern world, said Mr. G. K. Chesterton in a broadcast talk on freedom, has nearly destroyed liberty.

"By way of making myself yet more unpleasant," he remarked, "I will say that liberty is most nearly destroyed in non-Catholic countries like America and Prussia and England."

"Mr. Baldwin, for whom I have a very warm respect, has said that liberty is the very air we breathe, in which case I fear we must be feeling a little asthmatic."

ANSWER WOULD STARTLE

"If you imagine that any ordinary Italian would think the state of modern England a state of liberty, his answer would startle you very much. He would probably be asked to be taken back to his 'triant,' who would allow him a little freedom in his ordinary human affairs."

"If Mussolini were to forbid all lotteries, the Italians would think Mussolini was mad—not metaphorically, but materially medically mad."

WINE "POISON AT 3.5"

"The English Parliament has decided that wine is not a poison at five minutes to three, but becomes a poison at five minutes past three."

"If you told any normal Italian that it was a poison at five minutes past three, he would not bother about the morals of anything so manifestly mad."

"He would only say, How unlucky that even the strong brain of the Duke has broken down under the strain of this terrible international crisis."

"Parliamentary rule—and un-audited party funds rule Parliament. Englishmen were once more free than anyone else. It is how doubtful if they are not really more controlled."

LOST BALL

After a golf ball has been purchased and laid down for play, one of its only privileges is that it may be lost and indeed there must be thousands of them in accidental retirement up and down the country—nestling behind tufts of grass, or deep down in the brown mystery of ditches. If they happened to be old and worn at the time of the accident, no doubt they were left without a pang, but every now and again little boys find one of them cringing in a corner, and then it is dragged out of retirement for "active service" once again. That, of course, is the normal history in which balls are found within a hook or a slice of a meadow in which the game of golf is played, and it is, therefore, by no means difficult to account for their situation. But how are we to account for the discovery of an excellent ball—white, round, and apparently playable—on the slopes of a hill 300 feet inland, on the island of Nukusutok, a few miles to seaward of the village of Nain, in Northern Labrador? If the finder—a British surveyor—had had a grudge with him instead of a theodolite he might have had a good crack at it, for the lie was perfect. How did it get there? The nearest golf course is many hundreds of miles away, so that disposes, we imagine, of even a vicious hook. And the ball was alone. The possible theory that lost balls march to the coast and swim out to sea like the rats of Norway does not seem at all reasonable, although where they get to is always a mystery.

We are bound to fall back on the explanation that the ball was driven from the decks of an Atlantic liner by an eager American boy on his way to England to capture a cup. But why was it found so far inland? We could well imagine it rolling wearily ashore and coming to rest at the tide mark. Beyond that its progress must be a matter of conjecture, for it is notoriously difficult to make a golf ball go any distance uphill even when one has a club in one's hand. The makers have been appealed to and they suggest that a seabird may have carried it inland, tried to bite it, failed, and left it. "We write that down as a guess."

Manufacturers' advertise flight as one of the advantages of their products, but it is well known that only a select band of players are a bit of good at making the balls conform to the slogan on the box. If we cannot believe makers in their estimates of the soaring powers of the balls they make, are we to take their natural history on trust and accept their suggestion about the habits of sea birds? Not until we have consulted Mr. Seton Gordon. Rather than jump to conclusions, we prefer to leave the history of this golf ball as a pretty mystery from the moment it left the club to its discovery on a cold hillside by the Labrador retriever.

BOXER CAMPAIGN REUNION

London, July 4.
The first reunion of British officers partaking in the Boxer campaign of 1900 took place last night when forty veterans had dinner at the Naval and Military Club. General Sir George Barrow, Commanding the police in Peking at the time of the rebellion presided. All honorary members of the "Military Order of the Dragon" founded by the American Army wore the medal which was in bronze with a Chinese dragon in gold suspended from a Chinese pagoda roof by a yellow ribbon. American military naval attaches were the guests of the evening.

GERMAN-POLISH TALKS

LADIES BATTLE AT WIMBLEDON

American Helens Enter Final Of Singles

London, July 4.
The two American Helens, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs, entered the final of the Women's Singles at Wimbledon today by defeating their opponents in the semi-finals.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody beat the Australian player, Miss Joan Hartigan 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Helen Jacobs beat Mrs. Sperling of Germany 6-3, 6-0.

MOODY-HARTIGAN

Last year when she reached the semi-final critics said that Miss Hartigan was the worst semi-finalist for many years. To-day she ate the words.

The fragile looking Australian girl put up a great fight against Mrs. Wills Moody. The crowd cheered the immense pluck, charm and sportsmanship of the Australian who led 3-1 in the first set, hitting forehand drives with immense power and even surpassing her American rival, but she was weaker on the backhand and inferior in the second service.

In the second set Miss Hartigan went to 3-0, but the American, though not possessing overwhelming speed in her service drives as in her bygone days, rallied strongly to win six games in a row.

JACOBS-SPERLING

The weather was overcast when Mrs. Sperling (nee Krahwinkel) in a long white frock and Miss Jacobs in workmanlike shorts took the court.

Mrs. Sperling with her underhand serving had a tremendous reach and with a sphinx-like countenance she replied to her opponent's attacks with defensive and retreating tactics. Miss Jacobs was chopping on the forehand and flat horizontal strokes on the backhand drive. The American was taking the initiative in driving to the wings with varying speed and spin and won four games in a row for the first set after Mrs. Sperling was leading 3-2.

THE MUI TSAI

Inspectors For Malaya

London, July 3.
In the House of Commons, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for the Colonies promised to consult Sir Shenton Thomas, Governor of the Straits Settlements and High Commissioner of the F.M.S., regarding a suggestion by Mr. W. Lunn (Lab., Rothwell) that he should consider the importance of appointing a sufficient number of whole-time inspectors to supervise "mui-tai" in whatever parts of Malaya they exist in any numbers.

Mr. Lunn asserted that while there were more registered "mui-tai" in Malaya than in Hong Kong, there were fewer supervisory officials.

Mr. MacDonald replied in the affirmative to a question as to whether it was the Government's policy to abolish "mui-tai" in Malaya. He added that the Government considered the inspection there satisfactory.

BELGIAN LOAN CONVERSION

Paris, July 4.
The Belgian Government's negotiations with the Dutch banking group led by Mendelsohn Bank concerning the conversion of certain Belgian loans floated in Holland and Switzerland are now nearing conclusion, according to an Amsterdam correspondent of the well-known financial paper Agence Economique et Financiere. The conditions are said to be very advantageous for Belgium—far more so than the internal bond conversion. Financial circles stated that they regard this operation as evidence of the restoration of confidence in Belgian currency and foreign credit.

Miss Jacobs continued to serve magnificently in the second set, dashing up to the net at every opportunity and carried her sequence of winning games to ten for victory in forty five minutes. It was Miss Jacobs' best centre court performance.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES

In the quarter final of the Women's Doubles, Miss Katherine Stammers and Miss Freda James beat Mlle. Jedzejowska and Miss Noel 6-3, 6-3.

MEN'S DOUBLES

In the quarter finals of the Men's Doubles, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, the Australian pair, beat the Frenchmen, Marcel Bernard and Bonuss 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

In the other quarter final the Americans, Allison and John van Ryn beat the South Africans, Bertram and Musgrove 6-1, 10-8, 6-0.

STAGE FRIGHT

The South Africans were nervous and the Americans with the simplest of volleys were becoming winners until the second set when the South Africans recovered from stage fright and joined in bouts of hard hitting.

The South Africans broke through at 3-2. Musgrove's forehanders were very fierce and he and his partner led 4-2, but the Americans levelled the score at 4-4 until the games with the service to 8-8. Then the Americans ran out, disorganising their opponents by driving down the middle of the court to win the second set at 10-8.

The Americans were too quick on the ball for their opponents in the third set and volleyed their way to victory.

BUDGE AND MAKO

Donald Budge and Gene Mako won their quarter final tie against Maler and Wood 6-3, 6-4, 7-9, 3-6, 8-3.

SUIT AGAINST GOVERNMENT

Bondholder Takes Action

Washington, July 3.
Seeking to show that he suffered actual damages from the devaluation of the gold content of the American dollar, Mr. John Perry, who brought one of the celebrated "gold clause" cases earlier in the year, to-day filed suit in the Court of Claims in an effort to obtain $21,912 for $16,931 worth of Liberty Bonds.

Mr. Perry's previous suit was rejected by the Supreme Court on the grounds that no suit could be maintained against the Government unless damages had been suffered; second, that the plaintiff had failed to prove damages; and, third, that the proper court to decide in the matter of damages was the Court of Claims.

Mr. Perry has consequently sued there.

FREIGHT POOL IN FAR EAST

Hamburg, July 4.
German members in the Far East freight pool have no intention of renewing the pooling agreement under the same conditions, said members of the pool on hearing the agreement had been cancelled by some of their foreign colleagues. They declare that foreign shipping companies have to reckon with a united German front if a freight war comes about. Companies do not want measures compelling German goods to go on German ships only but contend that German trade should not be given to foreign companies subsidised by their Governments.

MR. GAMBELL'S DEATH

Shameen Swimming Tragedy

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 4.

Celebrations of the Glorious Fourth by the American community here were marred by the death on Sunday of Mr. C. F. Gambell, local manager of the Dollar Steamship Line. Mr. Gambell was injured while swimming at the Shameen Bathing Club, and died almost immediately after. As a result of this sad event, celebrations of American Independence to-day were confined to a reception at noon in the American Consulate General, at which high Chinese officials and members of the Consular Body were present.

Shameen firms had a half holiday to-day. The original plan was to have a buffet luncheon given by the Columbia Society at the Shameen Club to be followed by a ball. These entertainments were called off as an indication of respect to the late Mr. Gambell. The widow left here to-day for Hong Kong en route to the United States.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

BY NO QUARTER

This is getting beyond a joke. I mean, I don't mind a bit of rain sometimes, and I'm all for the dust being settled, and that sort of thing; but now, the safety of human beings and their property is being imperilled by the floods. (Loud flourish of bassoons, and a rude noise from Mrs. Ruglinson).

Have the heavens opened? Are the Gods, like naughty children, pouring water on us from a Titanic ewer? Or are they merely weeping at our colossal folly? A prize of seventeen cents and an unused Abyssinian 3-cent stamp will be sent to the reader who produces the best answer to these questions. The Editor's decision is final.

Meanwhile Dr. Aufang, profiting from biblical study, is building an Ark in which he intends to preserve the many curious fauna found only in this Colony. It is to be built of asbestos, the doctor informed me, in order to avoid the risk of fire. "There will be no question of burning our boats," he said, with a laugh. The doctor also told me some of the many species which he intends to preserve in his floating zoo and aviary. I was most interested in the types of birds he is intending to place in his Ark; and I feel it would be of value to my readers if I were to list them below.

THE BIRDS

- 1—THE GOIL (Vulgo paralytica). Highly coloured and utters high pitched cries of great monotony at mealtimes. Never nests.
  - 2—THE SPOTTED GIN-DRINKER (Vulgo Taipantechinus). A retiring bird, especially in the afternoon. Nests in hilly places, descending in search of prey during the daytime. Makes no characteristic noise except a hollow rattling throat-cry during the afternoon.
  - 3—THE LESSER GOLD-BANDED SNOOP (or Nautic Nip-drinker). Mates all the year round. Nests only in the vicinity of liquid. A deadly enemy of the Lesser Crested Shroff. Migrates to the North during the summer months.
  - 4—THE NEVERSINA CHIT. Distinguished by complete atrophy to the right shoulder muscles. Very common.
- This brief list will serve to show you that the Professor is taking his project very seriously, and with the alarming reports of the incipient floods all over the Colony, his preparations seem to me both wise and scholarly.
- I have been asked, by the way, to contradict the rumour that, in the event of serious floods, the roof of the new Bank building is entirely reserved for the Directors. Not only are they all dwellers on the Peak, but they have chartered a submarine to get to their offices in the mornings.

Even Vesuvius can be made to provide entertainment value which was evidently the motive prompting the Italo-American Broadcasting Company, who have been keeping radio reporters sitting on the edge of the volcano for months in the hope of being able to thrill its listeners with the awesome rumblings from the crater's entrails. On Wednesday night they were in luck when Vesuvius broke out in strong eruption to the accompaniment destined with roars and growls which were faithfully transmitted and relayed to the breathless radio public in France, Belgium, Austria, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, besides Italy and the United States.

CLOSE ANGLO-FRENCH CO-OPERATION

Italo-Abyssinian Problem

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinances, 1894 received, July 4, 7.30 p.m.)

London, July 4. The British Government is desirous of co-operating as closely as possible not only as far as the assurance of aims laid down in the London declaration of February 3 concerned but also as regards the Italo-Abyssinian conflict and is therefore keeping in constant communication with the French Government according to the Press Association.

The British Ambassador to Paris, Sir George Clerk, it is declared is calling on the French Foreign Ministry almost daily and will continue to do so in order to discuss with the French Government the needs of the situation.

The British Government, however, the report adds, does not intend to approach other members of the League of Nations for the time being.

DISPLEASURE IN ITALY

Milan, July 4. The Italian press grows constantly more acrimonious concerning England's attitude towards the Abyssinian situation especially about the suggestion put forward by the British press that a world economic boycott should be organized against Italy if Italy would not retract as regards the plans of military action.

Popoli di Roma writes: "In London people talk airily about economic sanctions, though, at this juncture, economic sanctions might themselves involve a serious danger of war."

"If British public opinion were unanimously behind the British Government's attempt to interfere in justified Italian action in East Africa," declares Corriere della Sera, "it would be really time to feel anxious about the relationship between these two states. Luckily the opposition of a large section of the British press to Mr. Eden's strange policy entitled Italy to draw a clear distinction between the British people and the Government."

"In London it must not be imagined that the threats to close the Suez Canal or the formation of an economic bloc against Italy is likely to cause Italy to abandon action required for the maintenance of her honour and flag."

FRENCH PRESS VIEWS

Paris, July 4. The British Government's attempt to even join France for joint action aiming at a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian conflict was the chief subject discussed by the press on Thursday morning which asserts that M. Laval's conversation with the British Ambassador on Wednesday was mainly devoted to the discussion of this matter.

Le Oeuvre sums up the situation from the French viewpoint as follows: "England now wishes to settle the Abyssinian problem at some price. Since this is impossible without France, London would now be willing to consider the conditions attaching to French mediation, even if the obligation would not entertain the idea of an air pact with Germany unless the conclusion of such a pact were tied up with the Eastern Danubian pact."

"If the negotiations now pending between London and Paris should fail to lead to a satisfactory solution, England would probably try and settle with France with full responsibility for the eventual outbreak of the Italo-Abyssinian war. England is already now thinking of the possible consequences such a step would have on the entire European situation. Happily, however, the League of Nations archives contain correspondence between the British and the Italian governments years ago when Britain made the proposal to divide and to distribute Abyssinia. Only a protest by the Abyssinian Emperor with the League of Nations stopped further pursuance of this plan at the time."

SUBMARINE ABOLITION

Berlin, July 4. The German press prominently features the 'repulse' against the abolition of submarines given by Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell in the House of Commons on Wednesday to questions put to him by the members when the First Lord of the Admiralty referred to Herr Hitler's assurance in his speech on May 21 regarding Germany's readiness to abandon submarines as a weapon if the other countries would do the same, a view with which the British Government fully concurred. This assurance had been reiterated by the German negotiators in the recent London conversations, but unfortunately the other countries were not prepared to take this step.

Several of the members then asked the First Lord to name those countries which had stood in the way of the abolition of submarines proposed by England and Germany. Sir Eyres-Monsell replied that there were several great powers who did not agree to this proposal among them France and Japan.

KEEPING IN TOUCH

London, July 3. Following the Anglo-German Naval Agreement, the British Government is now diplomatically making contact with the German and French Governments, mainly with regard to the procedure to be followed concerning exchange of views on the naval programmes of the three Governments.

Every kind of technical question is involved, such as the actual size and type of ships which Germany intends to build next year, and especially the rate of construction by which Germany proposes to reach the agreed maximum ratio.

Britain's intention has always been that when information had been obtained from the Germans, there would then be a pooling of information on the German, French and British programmes.

Reuter

OBJECTIONS RAISED

Paris, July 3. Objections to the British Cabinet's suggestion for mutual communication regarding the British, French and German naval programmes are voiced in French official circles.

The chief objection to the proposal is that France would thereby seem to approve the recent Anglo-German Naval Agreement, whereas France has hitherto refrained from agreeing, owing to its bilateral character.

France further considers that the British Government should, as a matter of normal procedure, communicate to France any information it possesses regarding German intentions, in virtue of the London and Stresa agreements.

It is also declared that France's future naval programme can only be decided after the German programme is made known.

NAVAL DISCUSSION IN ITALY

Rome, July 3. The Supreme Council of the Italian Admiralty has been convened by Signor Mussolini for an extraordinary meeting, which opened on Wednesday with Il Duce presiding.

It is assumed that the situation created by the conclusion of the Anglo-German Naval Pact and by Mr. Anthony Eden's recent visit to Rome, whose subsequent statement in the House of Commons will be thoroughly discussed by the Council in the course of the meeting, which is expected to last for two days.

SITUATION IN AMERICA

London Opinion

London, July 4.

"One really cannot take a short-term view of the United States entirely owing to political considerations, but President Roosevelt's rebuff over the Public Utilities Bill with the declaration of illegality of the N.R.A. give hope that business will be unshackled from official interference while inflationary implications of cheap money and huge governmental expenditures indicate ultimate higher levels in Wall Street. The question of constitutionality of the processing taxes which already contributed $900,000,000 to the Treasury for distribution to the farmers dwarfs all immediate considerations."

Such appears to be the city opinion regarding the outlook in the United States. It is felt that the administration, fearing another major defeat, will be prepared to accept minor concessions in the revised Banking Bill.

President Roosevelt is caught between Senators Huey Long and Coughlin, who are already powerful, and the conservative elements who are reported to be gaining increasing strength in the South and Southwest owing to abuses of federal relief.

The negro question is commanding attention and it is believed likely to come increasingly to the forefront politically. In view of the uncertainties especially of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, it seems that American industry will continue to drift for the present with markets lacking bullish initiative.

OTTO WILL RETURN TO AUSTRIA

With Full Approval Of All Parties

Brussels, July 4. Archduke Otto, interviewed by Reuter, admitted that negotiations were progressing for the return of the Hapsburg dynasty and added that he would not return to Austria without the full approval of all parties concerned.

Otto had a meeting with Herr Karwinsky, Austrian Under-Secretary of the Department of Justice, now in Brussels, who according to some quarters is offering to return the confiscated Hapsburg properties if Otto promises not to return at the present time.

Reuter

FEELING IN ITALY

Rome, July 4. The Austrian Government's decision to legalise the return of the Hapsburg dynasty is welcomed here as it is felt that the eventual return of the Hapsburgs will be a strong factor in the maintenance of the country's independence.

Reuter

GERMANY INDIFFERENT

Berlin, July 4. The newspapers here do not comment on the Hapsburg move. An official commentator said that the Government were watching events in Austria with the greatest attention, but there was no intention of interfering as it was more a matter for the States which once formed the Austrian-Hungarian monarchy.

Reuter

BANISHMENT RESCINDED

Vienna, July 3. The Austrian Cabinet has decided to abolish the law by which the reigning House of Hapsburg was banished from the realm when Austria became a republic. A bill has now been drafted expressing the Cabinet's decision to abolish the law which stripped from the House of Hapsburg the citizenship which was its heritage before the revolution of 1918. The approval of the Bundestag, a mere formality, is expected July 9.

Political circles are very sceptical regarding the Government's statement: "No far-reaching plans are intended." They take it for granted that unless something unforeseen occurs the monarchy will be restored this year.

Meanwhile, the Secretary of State, Herr Karwinsky, and Baron Wiener are going to the Belgian resort at Steenokkerze where Archduke Otto is staying, in order to negotiate with him concerning the return of Hapsburg property confiscated, and also respecting the return of the young prince to Vienna.

Reuter

ANOTHER TRIAL

Another move towards the restoration to the Hapsburg family of the throne of Austria is indicated by the report in the semi-official press that the Austrian Government intends shortly to abolish the Hapsburg appropriation laws and to return to that house, which formerly ruled Austria, $1,000,000 in property.

This means that two famous museums in Vienna, twelve castles and a large number of country estates, confiscated by the Republican Government in 1918, will be returned to Archduke Otto, heir to the Austrian throne.

It is believed that the first result of such a move on the part of the Austrian Government will be the return of Prince Otto to Austria, ostensibly as a private citizen, to be followed by intensification of propaganda in favour of the restoration to the House of Hapsburg of the throne of Austria. Influential circles regard this step the best means of checkmating the Nazi ambition in Austria.

Reuter

BILL PASSED

Vienna, July 3. A bill for the abrogation of the so-called anti-Hapsburg laws by which private property of the former imperial house was confiscated following the proclamation of the Austrian republic, was passed on Wednesday afternoon by the state council—the chief of the four consultative councils comprising the Austrian legislature under the new co-operative constitution.

The passing of the bill, which thus became law, was greeted by loud cheers by members of the council.

In order to allay apprehensions which the new law is likely to cause in the states opposed to the restoration of the Austrian monarchy, it is stressed in authoritative quarters that the law merely applies the rights of the property and is wholly devoid of any political significance, there being no question of the return to Austria of certain members of the House of Hapsburg.

COURT TAKES ACTION

The Mooney Case

San Francisco, July 3.

The State Supreme Court today ordered the hearing of Tom Mooney's petition seeking freedom on a writ of "habeas corpus" on September 3.

Mooney, the American Dreyfus, has been in prison for many years in spite of all efforts of his friends and in the face of proof that the evidence on which he was convicted was inaccurate, if not perjured.

Pressure brought to bear from Washington is believed to be responsible for the California court action, for previously the authorities would not listen to arguments in Mooney's favour. He is serving a life sentence as a result of the bombing of the "Preparedness Day" parade in 1918.

Mooney was a radical leader of a Communist group at the time of the bombing, in which ten persons were killed.

THE INDIA BILL

Reform Change

London, July 3.

The House of Lords continued the committee stage of the India Bill to-day, and, at the close of the discussion of an amendment moved by Lord Litchfield to change the method of election of certain members of the proposed Council of State, the Secretary for India, Lord Zetland, stated that in view of the volume of opinion expressed he was prepared to accept the principle of an Upper Chamber at the centre, elected on the lines of the present Council of State, that was to say, an Upper Chamber so far as Hindus, Moslems and Sikhs were concerned—special arrangements would have to be made for smaller communities—to consist of members elected directly by electors with a high property qualification. He wanted to lay great stress on that.

He suggested an electorate four or five times as large as the existing electorate for the Council of State, say about 100,000. An opportunity to discuss the proposed scheme will be given at a later stage.

OMINOUS SITUATION IN SHANGHAI

Japan Presents Five Demands

ALLEGED INSULT TO EMPEROR

Shanghai, July 4. An ominous situation is developing in Shanghai as the result of the presentation by Mr. Araya, Japanese Ambassador, to Mr. Tang Yu Jen, Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, of five demands arising from the publication of a "New Life" article allegedly derogatory to the Emperor of Japan. The following are the demands:

- 1—The dismissal of Wuh Sin Ya, director of the Bureau of Social Affairs of the Municipality of Greater Shanghai.
- 2—The abolition of Kuomintang headquarters in Shanghai.
- 3—The suppression of Blue Shirts (Chinese Fascist party) in Shanghai.
- 4—An apology from the Chinese Government.
- 5—A guarantee that the Kuomintang authorities in Nanking will take effective measures to prevent the occurrence of similar incidents in future.

PEIPING REVOLT SUSPECTS

Peiping, July 4. It is learned that 168 Chinese rebel soldiers, who allegedly participated in the storming of Peiping last Friday, were shipped early this morning under close guard aboard a south-bound train, and to an unknown destination. It is variously reported that they are going to Paoingfu, Hankow and Nanking. The fate in store for them is not disclosed. General Shang Chen is spending a few days in Peiping before proceeding to Paoingfu to take up

The Japanese flagship has postponed her departure for the North indefinitely. Inflammatory handbills are being distributed among the Japanese community by the more unruly elements who are spoiling for trouble.

The Chinese Government's anxiety is indicated by the visit of Hwang Shao Hsiung, Governor of Chekiang, and Chiu Chia Hwa to Chengtu in order to consult General Chiang Kai Shek. They arrived by air to-day.

There is every indication that the Japanese civil authorities are anxious for a peaceful settlement, but there are two possible sources of trouble. Firstly, the Japanese extremists may insist on punishment of some very high Kuomintang officials which is bound to cause great resistance; and secondly, the incensed elements in Shanghai of the Japanese community may provoke an incident leading to military action.

The supreme merit of Ovaltine is such that it enjoys the complete confidence of the medical profession, and is regularly used in the leading hospitals and nursing homes.

The manufacturers of Ovaltine may therefore record with satisfaction their 25th year of service in the advancement of the nation's health.

THE ONLY SOLUTION Chinese Livelihood Problem

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Shanghai, June 26th.

The co-operative system provides one of the most important keys to the solution of the livelihood problem of the Chinese people; and when applied along side of a "planned economy" programme by the Government, it will stabilize economic and financial conditions in the country, as well as pave the way for the people's self-government, says Mr. Chen Li-fu, chairman of the Organization Committee of the Central Kuomintang Headquarters in a recent speech in Nanking, on the importance of the co-operative system in present-day China.

In this present world of exploitation, conflict and war, Mr. Chen stated the co-operative system works for the preservation and blessing of mankind by sponsoring co-operation and equality. In contrast with radical socialism which agitates for uprooting the present social system at one stroke, it adopts more moderate reformative measures and institutes all changes in a spirit of goodwill and co-operation instead of hate and destruction.

ECONOMIC INTERESTS

Quoting Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Mr. Chen said that "Society progresses through the adjustment of major economic interests rather than through the clash of interests." The co-operative system, he asserted, just aims at the adjustment of major economic interests and the maintenance of human existence in peace and order.

In conclusion, Mr. Chen stated that the realization of the principle livelihood preached by Dr. Sun Yat-sen lies in the close co-operation of the Government and people. While the Government should adopt the control policy, the people should develop the co-operative system. These two measures should go hand and hand for the improvement of the people's livelihood.

In response to Mr. Chen's speech, a "propaganda week" to arouse the interest of the public in the co-operative movement will be inaugurated by local government and Kuomintang organization in co-ordination with various Chinese public bodies here on the occasion of the celebration of the International Co-operative Movement Day on July 1.

PROPAGANDA WEEK

According to a decision reached at a meeting held in the offices of the China Economic Co-operative Society on Avenue Edward VII, Monday afternoon, with representatives of the Bureau of Social Affairs, the General Labour Union and other groups in attendance, a ceremony inaugurating the "propaganda week" will be held at the City Government Building Kiangwan Civic Centre.

On July 2, the Bureau of Education will arrange with local broadcasting stations to broadcast propaganda bearing on the co-operative movement. Lectures will be given in Nantao Chapel, Pootung and Woosung, impressing the public with the importance of the movement, while, cinemas will be requested to exhibited special slogans and posters before filming the regular programme on July 3.

Theatrical performances and dramatic exhibitions will be staged on July 4, 5, and 6 and will be devoted to propaganda in schools as well as among factory workers.

An airplane will fly over the city dropping pamphlets and handbills on the movement on July 7, the closing day of the propaganda week.

ABOLITION OF TAXES

Heavy Burden Off The People

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Nanking, June 29.

From the shoulder of the people of China, particularly the farming classes, has been taken off a heavy financial burden in tax obligations to the State, amounting to no less than $31,900,000 as the result of the abolition during the past year of a total of 4,101 kinds of exorbitant taxes and miscellaneous levies in the various provinces, municipalities and districts.

The general principles for the readjustment of local finance were outlined at the National Financial Conference held last June in Nanking under the auspices of the Ministry of Finance. These called principally for the abolition of exorbitant taxes and miscellaneous levies, fixation of local budgets and readjustment of land taxes.

LAND SURTAXES

Among the exorbitant taxes, the heaviest were the land surtaxes. Before the decision of the National Finance Conference to abolish all exorbitant taxes, there were, for instance about 70 kinds of land tax surcharges each in Kiangsu and Chekiang and about 110 kinds in Hunan.

In view of the heaviness of such surtaxes, the National Finance Conference passed a resolution to effect drastic reductions in this burden on the farmers, and on June 8th last year the National Government issued an order prohibiting the levying of any additional land surtaxes.

Reductions in such land tax surcharges during the past year in various provinces, municipalities and districts amounted to $3,441,484. Other kinds of exorbitant taxes abolished during the past year numbered over 3,000, amounting to $23,458,559. Together with reduction of land tax surcharges, taxes have been scaled down by a total of $31,900,000.

RURAL REHABILITATION

As China is primarily an agricultural country, the fundamental step towards national recovery is by rural rehabilitation. The efforts of the Ministry of Finance during the past year to abolish all exorbitant taxes and miscellaneous

EXPORT TARIFF

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Nanking, June 26.

After being approved by the Legislative Yuan, the revised export tariff schedule was made public yesterday by a mandate of the National Government.

As soon as the new schedule goes into effect, a total of 138 kinds of native goods intended for export will be either exempt from duties or have the rates reduced. The total amount in dues to be reduced is estimated at $3,000,000.

According to the schedule, 88 kinds of goods are to be totally exempt from export taxes, including sea-products, dye stuffs, cotton piece-goods, tobacco, soap, alcohol, matches, sweetened fruits and others.

A total of 50 others are given reduction in export duties, including egg products, oil products, and others.

This new schedule, according to information from the Ministry of Finance, will not be enforced until regulations governing the abolition of transit duties and ways for making up the deficit incurred therefrom are made and approved by the Legislative Yuan.

SMUGGLING RING IN SHANGHAI

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Shanghai, June 26.

Japanese police from Kobe, working together with the local Japanese police during the past few days, have unearthed a big smuggling ring and rounded up several Japanese.

According to one of those arrested, the gang has succeeded in smuggling several million dollars of goods between China and Japan, causing considerable losses to both the Chinese and Japanese customs.

The disclosure here came as a sequel to the discovery of $10,000 in bank notes in a taxi in Kobe recently. The owner of this money later recovered it and gave the taxi driver a reward of $450. The police, however, were not satisfied and traced the owner to Shanghai. The result is the discovery of the smuggling ring.

THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE

Annual Report

In a foreword to the Report, Sir Harry Lindsay, the new Director of the Imperial Institute, expresses on behalf of his staff and himself their obligations to his predecessor, Lt. Gen. Sir William Furse, for his wise guidance of the affairs of the Institute during nearly nine years of office, 1926-1934. He goes on to say "Through our Advisory Councils and Technical Committees we have maintained close touch both with commercial interests in the City and overseas and also with scientific experts, who have contributed a wide variety of knowledge and experience towards the solution of the problems which arise from day to day at the Institute. These problems are addressed to us from many sources, official and unofficial; they may focus on specimens, on markets or on processes; they may relate to almost any class of material, whether of plant, animal or mineral. Their successful solution depends on the co-operative effort of the scientists, business men and administrators represented on our Committees and staff. This is team-work in the best and most effective sense of the term and it is concentrated on questions affecting the livelihood of a wide range of Empire producers, at home and overseas, whose interests we serve."

ENQUIRIES HANDLED

The following are a few practical illustrations of the classes of enquiry handled at the Institute:

The United Kingdom market prospects for eri silk cocoons were reported to the Director of Industries, Madras. By co-operation with the Calcutta authorities and with the Imperial College of Science and Technology, South Kensington, eri silk from India has been established in the Gold Coast as a local industry. Grading rules and standard sizes for Empire hardwoods have been drawn up and circulated with a view to developing the export of these timbers to the United Kingdom. The final form of the rules is now under consideration. In continuation of the Imperial Institute investigation of Empire fibres for marine cordage, the suitability of Empire sisal for tarred rope manufacture has been reported on favourably by the Admiralty and the report, which was published by the Institute, points to the possible substitution of tarred sisal rope for tarred ropes of foreign hemp. New Zealand phormium fibre and Indian sunn hemp were also the subject of enquiries and investigations.

TUNG OIL

The question of the most suitable plant and processes for obtaining tung oil from the seed of the tung tree, now being grown experimentally in many parts of the Empire, is under examination and some satisfactory results have been secured. Essential oils from the Seychelles and Kenya give promise of successful competition with foreign supplies. An Indian chemist is working in the Imperial Institute Laboratory on technical problems relating to shellac. A report was issued during the year on the best method of preventing "blisters" in East African hides and a report was also issued on the flaying of East Indian hides for the United Kingdom market. Camel hide leather from Somaliland is something of a novelty and is being tried out. Are Indian and Uganda hampers likely to give equally good commercial results if related by chemical process; and if the answer is in the affirmative, what process is likely to give the best results? Are any products of the Colonial Empire, at present regarded merely as waste vegetable matter, likely to prove useful as material for paper-making?

FRIENDLY WARNING

Peas and beans, spices, oilseeds and their oils, gums and resins, drugs, tanning materials and insecticides, all are grist to the Imperial Institute mill and all are the subject of words of friendly warning or encouragement either to scientific departments, primary producers and planters of the Empire overseas, or to importers, merchants and manufacturers of the United Kingdom.

So much for plant and animal products.

MINERALS

Minerals are also well represented in this Report. The chemical and mineralogical laboratories include sections for conducting assays for gold, etc., also brick, tile and pottery investigations and cement-testing. Analyses, technical trials and commercial valuations are carried out on samples received from many parts of the Empire. Nyasaland sent seventeen samples of well waters for analysis at the Institute during 1934 in order to ascertain the nature and amount of their mineral constituents. Corundum from Tanganyika would be suitable for the United Kingdom market if carefully washed and graded. British Somaliland sent samples of guano and phosphatic rocks for analysis and report. Gypsum from Cyprus was examined and reported upon as being of good quality and suitable for commercial purpose. Tantalite specimens from Uganda and columbite from Nigeria were examined and reported on to the local Geological Survey Department.

The Gold Coast authorities received reports on various minerals including clays, gold-bearing quartz and diamond-bearing gravels. On the Intelligence side, the prospects of the ferro-chrome market were examined, and, in co-operation with the Forest Products Research Laboratory, a report was prepared on the preparation of charcoal as a fuel for portable gas producers in Southern Rhodesia. Australian glauconite suitable for commercial use as a water softener was looked into, with a view to widening the market. Canadian felspar is in demand for the manufacture of artificial teeth. The officer in charge of mineral development in the Department of Mines of the Union Government of South Africa made extensive use of the Intelligence Section of the Imperial Institute during his visit to the United Kingdom last year. It is not yet fully realized in this country how varied and extensive are the different kinds of base minerals produced in the Union—the list includes manganese, asbestos, talc, mica, magnesite, corundum, mineral pigments and ores of iron, tungsten, chromium, vanadium and bismuth.

THE EXHIBITION

Over three-quarters of a million of the general public visited the Exhibition Galleries of the Imperial Institute during 1934, in addition to 2,591 organised parties from schools, technical institutions and training colleges. The Galleries provide a permanent exhibition illustrating the scenery, home life, sports, travel and industries of the overseas countries of the Empire. They are unique in that they provide a centre where all parts of the Empire—Dominion, India, Colonies, Protectorates, Mandates—are represented under a single roof. Perhaps the most popular innovation of late years has been the installation of a number of dioramas (illuminated picture models) which show in realistic form local scenery and industries. There are now over 100 of these dioramas in the Galleries. Another important feature is the display of industrial processes by which Empire raw materials are converted by stages into finished goods.

GUIDE LECTURES

Guide Lecturers on the staff of the Imperial Institute accompany organised school parties round the Galleries explaining the exhibits, and pass them to the Cinema, where Empire films are displayed. In the Exhibition Pavilion special exhibitions are staged from time to time. During the past year a Reptile Ekke Exhibition was held at the Institute for which material was collected from the Natural History Museum, from 18 firms of merchants and from 35 firms of manufacturers and retailers. Other exhibitions were organised by the Public Schoolsboys' Exploring Expedition to Newfoundland, the Civil Service Arts Club, and also an exhibition of original drawings for Empire Marketing Board posters.

MR. HU HAN MIN IN ITALY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, July 3.
Word was received here that Mr. Hu Han Min, former President of the Legislative Yuan, has arrived in Venice, Italy. He was met there by Mr. Liu Wen Tao, Chinese Ambassador to Rome, Dr. Wang Chung Hui, Judge of The Hague Court, and members of the Kuomintang organ in Paris. Mr. Hu will remain in Venice for two weeks before he goes to other European resorts.

The Kuomintang veteran is keeping in close touch with events in Canton and Nanking. Although he is in Europe for the sake of his health, Mr. Hu is able to return here at any moment. Many reports were circulated in Hong Kong and Shanghai papers stating that the South-west regime would be dissolved by the departure of Mr. Hu for Europe, and these reports turn out to be premature at least. The South-west administration maintains "business as usual" after the departure of Mr. Hu, whose influence is still felt here.

BUDDHA HAPPY AT LAST

Shanghai, June 24.
Despite the solicitous care with which Mr. A. M. Chaplain, the Postal Commissioner, regarded his welfare, since it arrived so mysteriously last year, the Laughing Buddha was not happy. To the discerning eye of the Postal Commissioner, the corners of his mouth were beginning to droop ever so slightly, and he seemed to be in danger of losing that philosophic smile with which he regards the fallacies and foibles of the world about him.

No clue as to his identity has ever come to light since the day he arrived here, on March 13, 1934, from London, addressed to the "Post-master, Shanghai," and accompanied by the following simple message on a small piece of paper:

"I am being sent back to my native land—please put me where I shall be cared for."

BROODING

What to do with the little bronze Buddha at first puzzled Mr. Chaplain, but he finally decided to keep him in his office. He was accordingly placed in a glass case with scarlet tassels, symbolizing happiness, hung from the corners, while candles were provided to make him feel well and truly at home.

Of late, however, he has appeared to be brooding, according to Mr. Chaplain. Lately though he was to lose his cheery little companion, the Postal Commissioner decided to spare nothing in an attempt to restore him to his former state of happiness. Yesterday he sent him to the temple of the Shanghai Buddhist Association, where he is now being looked after in surroundings more suited to him than the hustle and bustle of the General Post Office.

CHINESE BANKERS' MEETING

Three Institutions Admitted As Members

Shanghai, June 29.

The China Development Bank, the Chinese Industrial Bank, and the Woman's Commercial and Savings Bank of Shanghai were admitted as members of the Chinese Bankers Association at a meeting yesterday. The meeting also appointed an executive committee to modify the regulation concerning the qualifications to become a member bank.

Mr. K. H. Ling, general secretary, reporting on the business of the Association during the past half-year, referred briefly to the present financial stringency, caused by the outflow of silver and the depression in the rural districts. Consequently, many commercial and industrial concerns had to suspend business. In view of the situation, the Government had adopted relief measures, such as the inauguration of the Commercial and Industrial Loans Committee, the appointment of Government delegates to supervise the liquidation of closed banking institutions, and the granting of loans to native banks. He urged closer co-operation among the member banks.

The half-yearly accounts and report were adopted, and the budget for the ensuing half-year was passed.

$50,000 FRAUD CASE IN TIENTSIN

Three Suspects For Trial

Shanghai, June 29.

A reply having been received in Shanghai that all of the three suspects were wanted, the First Special District Court yesterday afternoon ordered the extradition to the Tientsin authorities of J. N. Skvirsky, Miss Bertha N. Wasserman, and E. M. Fuks, who were arrested recently in Shanghai on suspicion of being concerned in a fraud case involving $50,000.

The extradition of the three Russians was asked for by a representative of the Tientsin police on Thursday morning, but as the official despatch from the Tientsin court mentioned the names of only Skvirsky and Miss Wasserman, the hearing was adjourned till yesterday afternoon when a further despatch was received here, saying that all three were wanted.

Already three foreigners, Skvirsky, Miss Stakay and Krivini, alleged to be the master mind of the organization responsible for the fraud, had been taken into custody in Tientsin according to the representative of the Tientsin police in Shanghai, who also said that a man who was allegedly detained of $50,000 by this gang was named Chack, a wealthy Chinese resident in the British Concession in Tientsin.

SUPPORT FOR ABYSSINIA

Story Behind The Uaual Clash

The Hague, July 3.

A further meeting of the Committee of Conciliation in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute was held today and it was decided to hear the agents of both Italy and Abyssinia tomorrow. These will put before the Committee the arguments of the countries concerned and the evidence respecting the various border incidents which have led to a point where war becomes a very grim and grave threat.

Professor Jeze, of Paris University, who will speak for Abyssinia, will utilise a statement of Lieut. Colonel Clifford, a British officer who was near Uaual when the clash between Abyssinian tribesmen and Italian native troops occurred. It was this clash which led to the subsequent dispute and the massing of Italian troops in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

Professor Jeze will also produce an Italian map which shows plainly that Uaual is situated far from the border of Abyssinia and Italian Somaliland.

It has long been Abyssinia's contention that the Italians were trespassing on Abyssinian soil when the clash at Uaual occurred and that had they not been encroaching no trouble would have arisen.

The Italian delegation at the Committee sessions has been increased to fifteen members, all of whom are being closely guarded by the Dutch police for fear attempts may be made against their lives.

'DEAD' GERMAN SOLDIER TURNS UP

Welcomed By Wife

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Breslau, July 3.

A former German soldier named Hans Barutski, who was taken prisoner by the Russians in the World War, and not heard of since 1919, having in fact been officially declared dead some years ago, returned unexpectedly to his native village Wreski, in the province of Silesia on Tuesday, where his wife has been living all these years drawing pension as a war widow.

It appears that Barutski had settled after the War, in a Siberian outpost, where he lost contact with the outside world.

Some months ago he succeeded in obtaining work near Moscow, and immediately got in touch with the German Consulate, which took the necessary steps to facilitate his return to Germany. Fortunately for Barutski he missed the fate of Enoch Arden, since his wife had not re-married and joyfully welcomed her long lost spouse.

Barutski who before the War had been working in a cement factory, will, moreover, get back his old job.

TRIBUTE TO UNKNOWN SOLDIER

Paris, July 2.

An impressive scene took place on Tuesday afternoon at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, when a delegation of German War Veterans, which is conducting negotiations here with the International Ex-servicemen's Organisation "Fidac" visited the Arc de Triomphe under which the grave of the Unknown Soldier is situated, and deposited a huge wreath with a ribbon bearing the inscription "To the Unknown French Soldier, from the German Front Fighters."

It was a solemn moment when the leader of the German delegation placed the wreath on the tomb, while banners of the French, Italian, British, American and Portuguese ex-servicemen's organisations, whose delegates had accompanied their German comrades were lowered over the eternal flame burning above the grave.

The German veterans stood at attention for some time with their hands raised in salute, while numerous members of the German colony and a large crowd of on-lookers witnessed the scene with silent emotion.

TO CHINESE PARENTS

Rotarian's Message

Singapore, June 28.

Describing it as his message to all Chinese parents, Dr. Lim Eng Hae, at theiffin of the Singapore Rotary Club yesterday, gave an address on "Bringing Up Children for Chinese Parents."

Mr. H. W. Raper, the president of the Club, was in the chair.

Dr. Lim Eng Hae said: China has had a civilisation, philosophy from the dawn of her history and it was not until lately that foreign influence came to modify these. These modifications came slowly and started off firstly with the adoption of her scientific and economic requirements from the West.

Almost everything has changed since the republic except perhaps the method of the upbringing of children. Old traditions and customs die hard, in view of which and the classic teachings of Confucius, relating to the family system, is it any wonder that the method of bringing up children through their infancy, childhood and adolescence has been almost the same as the dawn of history.

ANTE-NATAL CARE NEGLECTED

The ante-natal care of the mother and the future baby is still being sadly neglected by the Chinese. This is a great pity for the number of valuable lives that could be saved and the blindness that could be prevented by a little expenditure of money, and a little knowledge of common hygiene do not seem to be a matter of importance to Chinese parents.

Fresh air, sunshine and cleanliness are all good for the infant, but unfortunately the average mother does not know all this.

Referring to childhood, the speaker advised parents to work together in their efforts to equip their child with a good foundation to weather the stormy seas of this very materialistic world. The child should be given the full benefit of the parents' experiences.

FUTURE ASSETS

Whatever tendencies the child may have in art, studies, sports or in other activities, should be carefully nured and encouraged, for these are the future assets of the child and should not be nipped in the bud at this early stage.

After dwelling on the stage of adolescence, the speaker concluded: "The meaning of the word 'responsibility' should be carefully and tactfully explained to the young. Until and unless that word strikes home its meaning and significance to them, then I say they are not fit yet to battle in this world."

The above is my message to all Chinese parents—for the betterment of the Chinese race, for the uplift of humanity, for the peace of mankind and for the peace of the world.

Mr. R. Jumabhoj proposed a vote of thanks.

UNIVERSITY GIRLS AS RELIEF WORKERS

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Koenigsberg, July 3.

Ninety-five girl students of the Koenigsberg University will work in factories voluntarily for four to six weeks during the summer holidays, in order to enable the women employees whose place they are taking to enjoy four weeks holiday for recuperation.

At a reception given to the factory volunteers, it was emphasised that every German had the same obligation of service to the nation and no student was entitled to four months holiday in the year, when fellow citizens—women and mothers—had to work year in and year out, with hardly a single free day.

AUSTRIAN NEUTRALITY DISCUSSED

Paris, July 2.

The alleged Czechoslovakian proposal for a general acknowledgement of perpetual neutrality of Austria similar to Switzerland is now being discussed in diplomatic circles in London according to the newspaper "Le Jour" here on Tuesday, which claims that while the British Government is willing to support any effort to ally the tension in Central Europe it nevertheless is opposed to assuming any responsibilities involving the possibility of military intervention.

DECREE NISI

For Mr. Hickson

Kuala Lumpur, June 24.

The petition brought by Mr. George Lionel O'Hara Hickson, for the dissolution of the marriage and custody of the child, against Mrs. Irma O'Hara Hickson as respondent and Levas Levinsonas as co-respondent, was heard to-day by Mr. Justice Cussen in the Kuala Lumpur Supreme Court.

The Hon. Mr. E. D. Shearn appeared for the petitioner. The respondent and the co-respondent were not represented.

Mr. Shearn said that neither the respondent nor the co-respondent had appeared although they had been served with notice to appear.

In July, 1934, when the action was called, neither of the parties appeared, and the petition had to be adjourned. It eventually came before the court in August, when the question of domicile went to the Court of Appeal and it had since come back.

The petition was in the common form. It alleged misconduct from November, 1933, and asked for the dissolution of marriage and the custody of the child.

George Lionel O'Hara Hickson, the petitioner, said that he was the manager of Bhutan Estate, Nisai. He married the respondent in Oct., 1932, at the Registrar's Office, Singapore.

TOOK TO DRINK

Unfortunately their relations became different as his wife took to drink. A son was born to them on Nov. 16, 1933.

In 1934, he went on leave and took his wife and child with him. They returned to Bhutan the following year. His wife started to take to drink and she had to go back to England for treatment the same year. She came back in 1936 but returned to England not long after.

In 1928, he went on leave and stayed in Guernsey, and in September of that year he and his wife separated on account of her drinking habits. That was the last time he saw her. In 1932 he again went to Guernsey. His son was then nine years old and went to school there for a short while after which he went to New Zealand and stayed with his sister-in-law.

He received from his sister-in-law a letter written by his wife, and wrote to his solicitors in London asking them to make inquiries. He then instituted divorce proceedings.

Affidavits sworn by witnesses in a town in Lithuania showed that respondent and Levas Levinsonas had been living as man and wife.

A decree nisi was granted by the court, to be made absolute in three months' time. The Court also ordered that the custody of the child should be given to the petitioner.

ARREST OF CHINESE REPORTER

Not Pro-Japanese But Communist

Shanghai, June 18.

Refuting the allegations in Japanese papers that Yuan Chao-yi (Yuan Hsueh-ye), a Chinese newspaper reporter, had been imprisoned by the Chinese authorities because of his pro-Japanese tendencies, a spokesman of the Shanghai City Government yesterday stated that the man was arrested for his Communist activities, and he was believed to have been working under the orders of Joseph Walden, the "mystery" man. The circumstances surrounding the arrest of the Chinese, according to the spokesman, were—

Recently, the Shanghai and Woosung Garrison Commander's Headquarters, in conjunction with the Settlement Police arrested a mysterious foreigner named Joseph Walden, of the G.P.U. of the Third Internationale, and seized from him a piece of paper containing the address of Yuan Dui, alias Yuan Hsueh-ye, as well as letters from Yuan. This proves that Yuan Dui is closely connected with the G.P.U. of the Third Internationale, and that he was undertaking secret work under the orders of the mysterious foreigner.

"Yuan Dui was arrested on a charge of Communism and not because of his relations with Japanese, nor was his arrest effected by the Blue Shirt Society, as alleged by Japanese newspapers. After his arrest, Yuan Dui was found to possess many aliases, amongst them being Yuan Hsueh-ye, Yuan Siao-tung, Young Chuan, and Lee Weiming. Gen. Wu Te-chen, the Mayor, has informed Mr. Yamada of the cause of Yuan's arrest."

"Yuan was a Communist who had repented and seceded from the Party, but he seems to be a man of indecision. Some time after his secession he returned to the Communist Party and undertook espionage work. His intrigues were not discovered until the arrest of the mysterious foreigner, Yuan and the foreigner have been sent to the competent court for trial."

DAY FOR FAST BOWLERS

POOR START BY SURREY
(By Our Own Correspondent).

Trent Bridge.

Fast bowling sadly upset the calculations of batsmen here yesterday on a drying pitch containing just enough fire to make things really awkward. Thus Surrey, although they dismissed Nottinghamshire cheaply enough for a total of 229, fared even more disastrously when Larwood and Voce took charge, and were 142 behind at the close with five wickets down.

At one period Notts had lost half their wickets for 111, which included a most stylish 38 by Hardstaff, but, as Surrey discovered, the home county can bat down to No. 11, thus Lilley and his captain, G. F. H. Heane, were together an hour and a quarter, adding 70 for the seventh wicket. Lilley, who was last out, was responsible for 60 out of 118, and hit seven 4's before being caught at short leg. Gover, who took four wickets for 32 runs—the last three for a run apiece—shared the bowling honours with Watts.

When Surrey went in everything went well until the score reached 25. Then both Sandham and Gregory were clean bowled, and at 59 Squires met a similar fate, while before stumps were drawn Barling was taken behind the stumps on the leg side, and Fishlock was leg before.

TO LESSEN OUTPUT

British Cotton Industry

London, July 3.

The Government's Bill providing for reduction of excess capacity in the spinning section of the cotton industry has been issued. The Bill gives effect, with few exceptions, to the proposals of the committee set up by the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners Associations, which were later approved by a large majority of master spinners.

A Spindles Board, with power to borrow £2,000,000 will be set up to buy redundant spinning plants at a price it considers acceptable and to dispose of it by breaking up or sale, but not sale for export. It is understood that the Board will be set up to buy or to compel sale of a plant, will be to reduce the existing capacity of between 48 and 53 million spindles by about ten million.

Interest and amortisation of the debt incurred by the Board will be met out of a levy paid for 15 years by every cotton mill with spinning. Egyptian or American cotton. It is expected that the levy will work out at one and one-sixth of a penny per mile spindle per annum. If the proceeds of the levy should fall short of the amount necessary, the Exchequer is to make good the deficiency. New plant will be subject to back levy, and for the first three years no new plant may be set up unless equivalent plant is surrendered or broken up.

A Board of three members will be appointed by the Board of Trade, and its operations will be kept under review, on behalf of the cotton industry by an Advisory Committee of four representatives of the spinners. Whether the Government will proceed with the Bill in the present session depends on the degree of general support forthcoming from all sections of the Commons.
